David Toma Will Lecture On Drugs to Students Here

"If just one or two teen-agers are challenged enough by David Toma to turn away from drugs and reckless use of alcohol, his visit will be worth it."

Described in his advance literature as "powerful, moving and unorthodox," Toma is a former drug-abuser, an ex-cop (Newark), ex-heavyweight boxer and one-time professional baseball player. He will speak in Jadwin Gymnasium twice next Wednesday under the auspices of the Fund for Drug and Alcohol Abuse, one of whose members made the statement quoted above.

His talks, which are free, will be directed to students and parents in separate audiences. He will talk to students from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, and to parents and other members of the community from 7:30 to 9:30 Wednesday night. (No taping or videotaping will be allowed in Jadwin either time.)

After his morning session, he will do informal counselling at Princeton High School from 12:30 to 2:20.

The next day — Thursday, June 10 — he will visit West Windsor-Plainsboro High School from 9:30 to 11 for informal counselling, and Lawrence High School from 11:30 to 1:30 for counselling.

David Toma was the model for the television show, "Baretta," although Toma himself says "He had my force, but he couldn't be me."

He speaks to over one million young people and adults a year, throughout the country, and his sponsors say that thousands of young people have been turned off drugs after spending only one day with him. Testimonials from thousands of youths and parents are said to document his effectiveness.

In his book, "Toma Tells it Straight: With Love," he has written: "Why have they responded to me? I talk to them straight and I talk to them in their language. They know I care."

"They know they're having problems with their memory and their comprehension. They know they've lost their ambition and excitement. They know what I'm talking about."

BACKING INTO SUMMER: That's the way it felt, this cool Memorial Day weekend, traditional start of the summer season. Susan Elliott was one of those who helped open the Community Park pool for the summer. The pool will be open from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. WEEKENDS ONLY for the next two weekends. The pool complex will be open full time starting June 14. The wading pool will then be open from 10 until noon. For the first time this year, separate lanes will be open for senior citizen ticket holders only, between ten and noon Mondays through Fridays.

Commencement Celebrated at Miss Mason's Marks 51st — and Final — Year for School

The final commencement at Miss Mason's School, with its traditional parade and musical performance by the "graduating" third grade, was exactly like previous commencements of the school.

Led by members of the Princeton University Marching Band, and carrying the American flag and the school banner, the graduating class was first in the line of march from the porch. Cameras clicked as the third graders, followed by class after class, from three-year-olds on up, passed in review before parents and grandparents on their way to an outdoor auditorium set up in a neighbor's garden.

Each child was wearing a special headdress created as a class project — there were chef's hats, the Three Little Pigs' house and a rainbow with bobbing clouds — and tootled or banged an instrument of varying degrees of sophistication. The graduating class, 12 girls dressed in white, sang carefully choreographed hymns of praise to peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, to climbing trees, to rain and to friendship against a backdrop replica of the school porch.

There was no final peroration by headmistress Mary Mason or board chairman Blackwell Smith, no tributes, no re-telling of the history of the school. One would not have

Tuesday Is Primary Day; Sigmund to Run for Senate

Primary day for party regulars is next Tuesday. Polls open at 7 a.m. (For changes involving two Township districts, see page 4.)

The primaries this year have more interest for Princeton than in years past, chiefly because Princeton resident Barbara Boggs Sigmund wants to run as the New Jersey Democrats' choice for United States Senate. A former member of Borough Council, she is now a Mercer County Freeholder.

In local races, there is a Democratic primary contest in the Borough, where three people want to run for the two available seats on Council. The regulars are incumbent Barbara J. Hill and running-mate Diana Radcliffe. The maverick is Pierina Thayer. It had been expected that former Council member Martin P. Lombardo would also run, even though he had not been endorsed by the party, but he did not file.

Republicans in the Borough have no contest. Richard Woodbridge is running for a third term on Council, matched with newcomer Henry Abernathy.

University Must Reconsider Accusation of Plagiarism

Determinations to be made by Princeton University President William G. Bowen in the plagiarism case of Gabrielle Napolitano will decide whether the University senior receives her degree next Tuesday. President Bowen was scheduled to hear Ms. Napolitano's arguments this Tuesday.

The University's faculty-student committee on discipline found Ms. Napolitano guilty of plagiarism in a 12-page paper, written in Spanish, on the Garcia-Marquez novel, "One Hundred Years of Solitude," and said her degree should be withheld for one year, and law schools to which she had applied, notified of the committee's action. President Bowen upheld the committee's decision.

The charges were made by Ms. Napolitano's professor of Spanish, Sylvia Molloy, who stated that the student had either copied verbatim from a Spanish book by Josefina Ludmer, or had paraphrased the book without acknowledgement.

known that this was the final day of a school that has held a special place in the minds and hearts of countless parents and children since before World War II.

Positive Thinking. After the punch and cookies, parents brushed away a tear and lined up with their children for a final farewell to the headmistress who told the children cheerfully that they were a Miss Mason's school child "forever" and that there would always be a school room in the building for them to come back to.

The upbeat, non-sentimental, business-as-usual approach is characteristic of Miss Mason, who says of herself, "I've always had such fun in life; I am the happiest person I know." One of four children of a newspaper executive who grew up in a remote village between Montreal and Quebec, Miss Mason came to Princeton in the early 1930's when her brother's wife's brother, a Princeton Seminary student named Ted Johnson, married Kitty Cameron who was the teacher for a cooperative nursery school which met in Rose Cottage.

Said to be the first "non-charity" school for upper class, non-working mothers, the school was started in the fall of 1931 by a committee of mothers, members of a child study group which had met the previous winter. They included Mrs. George Elderkin, Mrs. Elmer Greey, Mrs. Emerson Swift, Mrs. Archibald Crossley and Eleanor Marquand Forsythe, later Mrs. Douglas Delaney.

Teaching to love, and on to love

GRADUATING THIRD GRADERS at Miss Mason's School wait with teacher Jermain Andrews and assisting Princeton University senior Margaret Burns for their moment to perform at the final commencement at Miss Mason's School.

Miss Mason who had taught reading punctuated with French conversation to five-year olds in Mme. Marlore's Jardin des Enfants in Cambridge during her undergraduate days at Wheelock College, stayed on in Princeton as a helper at the Rose Cottage Nursery School for two, three and four year olds that spring and the following winter. After a year teaching at the Springside School in Philadelphia, she decided that her skills, nurtured by early childhood managerial training imparted by her mother, lay in organizing.

Miss Mason returned to Princeton and petitioned Mrs. Elderkin and Mrs. Crossley to let her run the school. "I didn't want it to be a cooperative," she recalls. "I felt I could be freer to do creative teaching without the mothers running it."

The Child Garden. She proposed calling her school The Child Garden, after Le Jardin des Enfants in Cambridge, but Datus C. Smith told her no one would know whose school it was and to name it after herself. In the first and only brochure she ever wrote, she noted that the school would always be very small — never more than 12 children. As the school grew beyond those original self-imposed bounds, she came to prize the fluidity of never writing down her philosophy.

"So much of it is intuitive," she says. "I never wanted a school that was so big I would need a brochure. It is much more useful to me to be able to talk to each person individually."

Miss Mason's School for three and four-year olds was first housed in "The Fish Bowl," a private bowling club erected by Mrs. Allen Shelton down the street from her own home on Newlin Road. Cora Beagles assisted Miss Mason in the care of the children and the chores of a school, a Miss Cook played the piano, and Anne MacLaren came in for an hour to teach art.

On Thursdays, maid's day out in Princeton homes, Miss Mason offered to keep the children for lunch, and having trained them "within an inch of their lives to enter quietly with their hands behind their backs, she took her little band of three and four-year olds to the Prince of Orange, an eating place at the head of Bayard Lane where the are built around learning Millholland Decorating Shop.

is now. After a 35-cent lunch, the children were allowed to look around in Naomi Hicklin's gift shop, hands again behind backs.

Importance of Limits. "I believe in limits, in setting limits, so people can be free within the limits," Miss Mason says as she recalls with pleasure the disciplined self-control of those early classes. "And everything that is done with a child should be done with love, heartfelt, compassionate, unselfish love. If you can be selfless enough, you can get under a child's skin and rejoice and feel with the child in all sorts of ways."

From the Fish Bowl, Miss Mason's School moved to the corner of Nassau and Harrison Street in what came later to be known as the Bowers Building. In 1951, still only for nursery age, but with two groups of three's and four's, the school purchased the former home of Colonel Libbey on Bayard Lane which the University had used for wartime housing. Additional grades were added one at a time from kindergarten to grade three and the school grew to 12 times the original projection.

Miss Mason likes the comment from the headmaster of one of the great English private schools who answered a question about the secret of his success by saying "I walk the halls." Particularly in the early years, she freely entered classes to get a feel of how things were going and to give help when she felt it was needed. "I like to find ways to help my teachers, for if they have an inner sense of joy and love for their work, special things happen."

"My teachers are the school," she adds. "My children are the best in the world, and my mothers are wonderful." Miss Mason also pays special tribute to Blackwell Smith as the longtime chairman of her board, and his wife Moyne.

Reaching Out. Since the mid-1960s, Miss Mason has been involved in two simultaneous endeavors: the day to day running of the school and a longer range developing of programs taught at the school so that they can be shared in public schools. The school is closing so that she can devote all her energies to "sharing with many instead of the few," as she puts it.

Mason Math, a mathematics activities program for kindergarten or first grade, is in use in some 45 schools in 19 states and four Canadian provinces. Lessons are built around learning activities which allow children to walk on a number line, shake jars of counting stones or place inch-square numeral cards in certain sequences long before they are required to answer questions or solve written problems.

Miss Mason is a firm believer in the ability of young children to learn almost anything "if it is taught in its essence and in a way that children can receive it." Children can intuitively absorb the notion that numbers extend infinitely and that there are negative numbers as well as positive ones; it is their elders that have trouble with these concepts, she says.

Miss Mason developed the math program, the manual and the manipulative materials with the help of many people, but particularly with the assistance of Dr. Henry Pollack of Bell Labs. The program in action was filmed by Francis Thompson Inc., filmmaker for NASA and the American Exposition at the Knoxville World's Fair who is in the process of completing a film on expository writing as taught to second graders at Miss Mason's School.

From School To Foundation. With the closing of Miss Mason's School, the building at 53 Bayard Lane will become the property of the Mason Early Education Foundation which will have the same board as the school. Work in connection with the early education programs as well as some experimental work with children will be the two activities taking place in the building. Miss Mason also plans to do some traveling to talk to teachers in public schools around the country.

"I want to help them see their place in the making of America," she says. "I want them to teach the 3R's with burning enthusiasm, because the secret is in what we give children's minds. I want to give others the courage to build on the desire of the children to learn."

APPOINTMENT SET
Of Assistant Superintendent. A new assistant superintendent, replacing Paul Jennings, is scheduled for appointment this Tuesday by the school board at a salary of $45,200. The appointee will also be affirmative action officer for the schools. Dr. Jennings, who is leaving Princeton to become superintendent of schools in Wellesley, Massachusetts, will be honored this Wednesday day afternoon at a reception at John Witherspoon School.

Following an agenda full of personnel and salary matters, the board was scheduled to ratify the 1982-84 agreement with the teachers (The Princeton Regional Educational Association) and the aides association. Details of the agreement are expected to be available next week, after ratification by the PREA membership.

Salary increases amounting to nine percent for school staff who do not belong to any of the unions, were also up for ratification. These salaries, based on a work year of 220 days, except for food services, which is 205, are as follows:

- Business administrator-board secretary: $43,800.
- Manager, facilities services: $40,000.
- Manager, food services: $32,900.
- Controller-assistant board secretary: $25,000.

- Supervisor, equipment-maintenance: $25,000.
- Shop supervisor (new position): $25,000.

Salary ranges for cafeteria employees, also on the agenda for board ratification, are:

- High school cafeteria manager: $7,775 to $8,100.
- Middle school cafeteria manager: $7,105 to $7,430.
- Elementary school cafeteria manager: $6,440 to $6,765.
- Baker: $5,500 to $5,825.
- Head cashier: $5,500.
- Helper: $4,965 to $5,450.

These ranges are based on a six-hour work day for 184 days a year.

Hourly employees will get an eight percent increase, bringing bus drivers to $6.50, $6.75 and $7 an hour; custodians to $5 an hour; skilled maintenance workers to $7.50; maintenance foreman to $6 and secretaries (clerical) to $5.

PEACE MARCHERS DUE

En Route to New York. The Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament will be host to the World Peace March this Thursday when some 100
marchers will stop overnight in Princeton enroute to New York City and the U.N. Special Session on Disarmament.

Led by Japanese Buddhist monks, the marchers are expected to arrive on foot in Princeton at 5 p.m. A vegetarian potluck supper will begin at 6 at Trinity Church, where the marchers will spend the night, and will be followed by a presentation at 8. Members of the public are invited to both events, and those coming for the supper should bring a vegetarian dish or salad to serve 10 people.

The World Peace March has been making its way on foot across the United States in five different groups, or legs, since last fall. The purpose of the March is to focus attention and spiritual energy on the upcoming Second United

The Coalition has also confirmed that the Rally will take place on the Great Lawn in Central Park rather than the U.N. Plaza as previously announced. The change was necessitated by the large crowds which are expected for the Rally--N.Y. police are expecting from 300,000 to 500,000 people.

Riders on the Disarmament
Train will be met by Rally marshalls and escorted in a march up 7th avenue to the 72nd Street entrance to Central Park. The Rally is estimated to last five hours, but riders may take any

Large Increase in Deer Population Causing Problems for Police, Drivers

If you think you have noticed more deer lately lurking in the shadows along Princeton roadways, you are not alone. Roger Breese, Princeton's small animal control officer since 1969, estimates that the number of deer struck by cars has tripled since the Township banned hunting with firearms several years ago. And in the past week, reports Borough Police Chief Michael Carnevale, two deer — one dead and one alive — have had to be removed from the Borough.

On Monday a deer was struck and killed by a car on Stockton Street near Elm Road.

Last Friday morning Borough police responded to a call from a groundskeeper at Morven, the governor's residence, who reported that a deer had become wedged between the bars of the wrought iron fence surrounding the mansion. The deer, a buck weighing 60 to 70 pounds, had put his head through the bars, which are only six inches apart, and then squeezed through until his hindquarters became stuck.

Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad members used the jaws of life to separate the bars. Mr. Breese hog-tied the deer and then released him at the Coventry Farm on the Great Road. After a few moments of uncertainty the deer wobbled off into the woods.

Reports of deer in the heart of the Borough do not surprise Mr. Breese. He has seen herds of five or six grazing in the Princeton Cemetery. "What amazes me is how they could walk in there without anyone seeing them," he says. "I think that with hunting allowed all around us the deer run this way during the hunting season. And it's good grazing here."

If you hit a deer with your car contact the Borough or Township police. They will arrange for its removal — taking the deer yourself to augment the supply of food in the freezer is illegal in New Jersey. If you find a deer grazing on the rhododendron in the back yard contact Mr. Breese through the Township police. Deer are not normally dangerous but they have been known to charge at humans if they become cornered. That is especially true of bucks during the breeding season in the fall.

THREE ARRESTS MADE
By Borough Police. A University student and two area residents were arrested in the past week by Borough Police.

Elizabeth Yerkes, 18, was arrested in an archway of Holder Hall at about midnight last Thursday and charged with the theft of a traffic barricade and a flashing amber light. Patrolmen Taylor and Nathan had observed a woman carrying a barricade down University Place.

Bike Recovered. A bicycle stolen on May 22 from in front of Buxton's on Nassau Street was recovered last Thursday when a friend of the owner saw the bike being ridden on Pine street.

Patrolman Randy Sutton investigated, located the bicycle, and charged John Gore, 23, of 12 Pine Street with possession of stolen property.

Champagne Taste. At 2:20 a.m. on Sunday morning police responded to a call from a University student at Cap and Gown Club, who reported that someone had stolen a bottle of champagne. When police arrived, University proctors had in their custody Daryl Pemberton, 24, of RD 4, Route 27, who was charged with possession of a bottle of champagne that matched the 190 pounds, husky, with curly blond hair. He was wearing a white tee shirt with tan slacks. The other was about 26 years old, five feet, eight inches, stocky, with dark hair. No clothing description was available.

Later that same day police began searching for a young man and woman who ate dinner at the Grotto Restaurant on Witherspoon Street and then left the premises without paying the check—for $26.85.

The woman was described as being in her 20s, with short, dark hair, about five feet, seven inches, wearing a pink blouse with hearts. The man, also in his 20s, had a round face with sandy hair, weighed about 170 pounds, and wore glasses.

2 JUVENILES ARRESTED

At Arboretum Cottage. Two 13-year-old Township boys were arrested and charged with criminal mischief last Monday, May 24, after being apprehended near the cottage located on the grounds of the Herrontown Woods Arboretum off Snowden Lane.

Township juvenile officer Jerry Offredo reported that the cottage, which Mercer County hopes to turn into a museum at some time, has become a hangout for teenagers, who break into it and use it as a clubhouse. "These kids know better," said Mr. Offredo of the two arrested last week. One of the boys had been apprehended there before. He was charged also with trespassing.

Police reported that $75 to $80 in damage had been done to the cottage apparently as the result of moving shingles in an effort to gain entrance through a window. The two youths were caught by a caretaker who summoned Township police.

PARKED CARS STRUCK

By Burglars. Drivers who parked their cars in the lots of the YMCA, Community Park and the Princeton Medical Center were the victims of break-ins last week.

Borough Police reported that someone gained access to a car parked in the Y lot last Friday and removed a set of tools and a spare tire valued at $140.

In the Township, two cars parked in the Community Park lot were entered last Thursday. A Franklin Park resident reported the loss of two pairs of golf shoes and about 150 cassette tapes, valued at $1,000. A Hopewell resident left his car in the lot for about an hour. He discovered that a brown leather wallet with $15 in cash, a checkbook, a pair of grey sweatpants, and a watch valued at $100 were missing.

On Monday morning a Lawrence Road resident parked his car at the Medical Center parking garage. When he returned that evening he discovered the door ajar, the hood unlatched, and evidence of tampering with the starter mechanism. The car apparently had been entered by someone using a coathanger or similar device.

SILVER TOPS LIST
In Theft Report. Borough Police reported that sometime Saturday or Sunday a Bayard Lane house was entered through an unlocked window and at least $4,000 worth of silver was stolen.
"They took at least that much and the figure could go higher," said Chief Michael Carnevale. Detective James Agins was investigating.

University Hit. A bicycle valued at $100 was stolen from its parking place in a rack outside Guyot Hall last Friday. Police reported that bolt cutters were used to cut through the lock.
Officials at the University's Frick Laboratory reported the theft of three calculators from the premises last Wednesday. The calculators, valued at $160, were removed from desks.
A University employee lost $45 in cash and a wallet in a theft that occurred May 25 in Green Hall. On May 24 a student preparing to leave for the summer discovered that a typewriter was missing from an office in Aaron Burr Hall.

$300 Cash Taken. Last Thursday an employee of a Witherspoon Street store left her purse behind a counter while she was in the back of the store. When she returned the purse was gone. It had contained $300 in cash.

Two bicycles were reported stolen from the grounds of Princeton High School. On May 25 a 12-speed bicycle, valued at $300, was stolen from the athletic field. The owner had left the bike unlocked, leaning against a fence. Two days later another unlocked bicycle, valued at $150, was taken from its parking place on the east side of the school.

Coins, Cufflinks, Silver. Someone went to a fair amount of trouble to pry open a bedroom window of a Halsey Street house on Monday. The burglar received $5 in loose change for the effort. In another burglary several blocks away on Devereux Avenue last Wednesday, the thief made off with a gold ring, valued at $400, two silver necklaces worth $30, and $25 in change.

Police in the Borough reported that someone entered a Witherspoon Street apartment between May 23 and 25 and stole a pair of antique gold cufflinks worth $350. No sign of forced entry was evident. A home on Fitzrandolph Road was entered in a similar fashion on Saturday and thieves removed a box containing silver service pieces.

Houses Damaged. Two homes were ransacked and another incurred damages in apparently separate incidents. A William Street apartment was entered through a second floor bathroom window between 8 and 8:30 p.m. on Sunday. The premises were ransacked but nothing was reported taken by the intruder or intruders.

A ladder leading to an upstairs window of a Markham Road house aroused the suspicion of neighbors over the Memorial Day weekend. They called police, who discovered that the home had been ransacked and that the contents of two jewelry boxes and a portable television had been stolen.

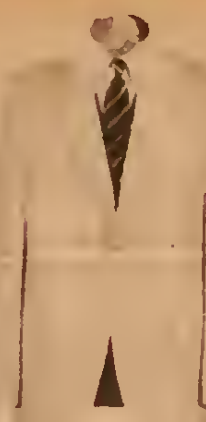

A Random Road resident reported to Township Police on Monday that three large windows and storm windows on the north side of the house had been broken, apparently by someone wielding a piece of firewood. No entry was made into the house.

WARRANT ISSUED
For PCV Resident. Township Judge Sydney S. Souter issued a bench warrant for the arrest of George L. Beer of 4B Holly House, who failed to appear in Township Court last week on a charge of theft of a license plate. A cash bail of $500 was set.

In other Township Court proceedings, Judge Souter found Percy Randall Jr. of Lambertville, formerly of 12 Red Oak Row, guilty of simple assault. He was fined $25, given six months probation, ordered to pay $25 to the Violent Crimes Compensation Board, and directed to replace a set of earphones destroyed in an argument that led to his arrest. Charges filed by Mr. Randall against Kathy Cruser

BIG (AND LITTLE) DEAL.

Canon AE-1

- Canon AE-1 35mm SLR camera body
- Choice of two zoom lenses — the 35-70 or the 70-150
- Gadget Bag — foam padded, nylon shell, $19.95 retail value.
- All for a special BIG DEAL/little price of $379.90.

Get the Big Picture and the Little Picture and everything in between with the Canon AE-1 with your choice of two zoom lenses. It's the Princeton University Store's BIG (and little) DEAL.

If compact, automatic, state-of-the-art electronic performance at an almost incredible price is what you're looking for, this AE-1 Deal is for you.

Even someone who's never used a fine camera will take perfect pictures with the Canon automatic AE-1. A miniaturized "computer" Central Processing Unit (CPU) in the AE-1 handles all signal information in the camera, and makes it respond instantly. The AE-1 offers: Two-step electronic shutter release button, letting you preview your exposure right in the viewfinder.

Exposure compensation for back-lighted situations (or in the snow or at the beach) with a special button that gives an increase of +1.5f stops when pressed. A special preview lever for checking depth-of-field. Easy-to-read viewfinder aperture display. Exceptional battery economy (with built-in battery check.) Electronic self-timer. And more.

In your hands the Canon AE-1 is a compact marvel of thoughtful engineering to use as a focus-and-shoot automatic SLR or to explore the technological miracles it can perform.

Now the Princeton University Store is offering the Canon AE-1 body in a special package with your choice of two Canon zoom lenses: the FD 35-70mm f4.0 or the FD 70-150mm f4.5.

The 35-70 offers, throughout its focal length range, equivalent performance to any fixed focal length lens it replaces. The 70-150, with one-ring zoom-focus system, approaches the theoretical limits of perfect zoom lens design thanks to its optical (rather than mechanical) compensation. Both lenses offer bayonet-style mounting procedure for much improved handling.

And finally, as a special bonus, the Princeton University Store will give you the Coast padded compact SLR case, made of Cordura nylon, in tan or rust, regularly retailing for $19.95.

Now you can get the Big Picture and the Little Picture and everything in between with our BIG (and little) DEAL. The Canon AE-1 body, your choice of two zoom lenses, and a bag to carry it in, all for only $379.90. Only at the Princeton University Store.

There's one more thing only the Princeton University Store offers: expert, friendly service. When you pick up your first (or your fifth, or your twenty-eighth) roll of processed film, show us your pictures and ask for a free critique. We'll help you get the most from your camera. You care about the pictures you take and so do we. Come see for yourself.

CHANGE PLANNED

For University Entrance. A change in the entrance to Princeton University between Nassau Presbyterian Church and Holder Hall is under consideration. The trustees of Princeton and the Session of Nassau Church have agreed to explore the possibility of exchanging their respective vehicular entrances from Nassau Street.

The University wants to shift its entrance to improve safety in the Holder Hall-Alexander Hall area and to eliminate through traffic in front of Alexander. It also wants to re-landscape the area for more intensive pedestrian use and unsnarl tangles of church and University traffic, especially when the Nassau Cooperative Nursery School is receiving and dismissing children.

The church is also interested in consolidating its land holding and in having a parking area not subject to

University Campus Humming with Activity; It's Reunion and Graduation Time Once More

Reunion tents are popping up all over the Princeton University campus like mushrooms after a spring shower. It's that time of year again.

From late May, when the parents of undergraduates first invade the campus with station wagons and U-hauls to move out an army of post-exam revelers, the campus explodes with activity as thousands of alumni, parents, friends and mere onlookers swarm over newly seeded lawns and through dormitories for Reunions, which overlap with Commencement, which overlaps with the On-Campus Alumni College.

Reunion events will begin this Thursday, and the activities, noise level and congestion on Nassau Street will reach record highs before the last visiting alumnus has turned homeward, sometime after Saturday, June 12.

Reunion activities will be in full swing on Friday with faculty-alumni forums asking questions ranging from "Modern Religion: Turning Inward?" to "Where Has the Energy Crisis Gone?" and from topics such as the "Changing World of Book Publishing" to "Prospects for World Peace." A complete list of forums, participants and locations will be available at Maclean House, headquarters of the Alumni Council, 452-3350.

Friends of Princeton Sailing have scheduled a slide show and talk at the Woodrow Wilson School at 2 p.m. with transportation to Lake Carnegie for sailing leaving every 30 minutes from 3 p.m. on from the circular drive in front of the Woodrow Wilson School. From noon to 6 the Princeton University Soaring Society will sponsor glider flights at a fee from the airport at Forrestal.

Other activities in which the public might be interested are a walking tour of Prospect Avenue beginning at 10 a.m. and a tour of the Putnam Memorial Collection of Contemporary Sculpture, beginning at 10:30 at the Art Museum.

P-Rade Saturday. Leading the long line of black-and-orange clad P-rade marchers who will begin the mile-long route to Palmer Stadium Saturday at 2 will be Grand Marshall Stu Duncan '50. He will carry the brand new P-rade mace - donated for the annual occasion in honor of the late Frank T. Gorman '41 who served as P-rade Grand Marshall for 17 years. The mace has a cast iron bronze tiger head sitting on a sinuously carved wood staff which is reminiscent of a tiger tail.

Alumni Council estimates that about 4,000 alumni and 6,000 family members will march this year, accompanied by an army of marshals whose job it will be to keep the pace brisk.

Leading the classes will be Carl F. Hinrichsen '07, who turned 95 in March. Mr. Hinrichsen, who will be observing his 75th reunion, will be the recipient of the Old Guard Cane, which goes to the oldest living member of the oldest class.

"We Are Family" is the theme for the 25th reunion class, which has emphasized in its pre-Reunions literature that class members bring all their children with them. The class will gather at Drumthwacket, the official if not actual residence of Governor Tom Kean '57, for a cocktail party on the eve of the Reunions.

Princeton's 10th reunion class also has a new tradition to contribute to Reunions: not just any tiger, but a real tiger who will stalk campus during the weekend within the environs of a cage.

The University has always had its share of well known alumni who return for Reunions. This year perhaps the best known name is that of James Stewart '32 who will address the Commencement audience for the ROTC commissioning and march with his class members during the P-rade. Triangle Club, which will present "Stocks and Bondage" in three performances during Reunions weekend, has dedicated its show to its most famous alumnus.

As weary alumni-ae depart on Sunday, parents and friends of graduating seniors arrive. That day will also see the President's Garden Party, Baccalaureate Service, Senior Step Sing at Blair Arch and Step Band Concert.

Monday is chock full with the ROTC ceremonies and reception, Class Day ceremonies and luncheon, the Graduate Alumni Party, trustees' meeting and Senior Prom.

Tuesday at 11 a.m. the 235th Annual Princeton University Commencement, the awarding of honorary, undergraduate and graduate degrees, will be held in front of Nassau Hall, or in Jadwin Gymnasium if it rains.

PLANNING FOR DAVID TOMA: Next Wednesday, June 9, the ex-cop, ex-drug addict, ex-boxer David Toma will come to Jadwin Gym for two appearances: one for students, one for parents. Steering committee members of the Fund For Drug and Alcohol Abuse, Inc., are shown here planning for the event. Left to right are Loy Ann Carrington, head of the committee; Dr. William Burks, Susan Shaffer, Cathy Cummings, and, partially hidden, Frank McDougald.

when I tell them how a lot of kids think about suicide. They know about the numbing sensation in their side, their limbs, their face. They simply never connected it to pot. I know about drugs. I made it my business to know and they appreciate it."

Members of the fund against alcohol and drug abuse quote Princeton Township police figures showing that in 1981, there were 71.4 percent more people charged with driving while intoxicated than there were the year before.

For the same period the number of juveniles arrested for possession increased 50 percent.

In the Borough, police say, 1981 arrests for driving while intoxicated were 43.6 percent over 1980.

Many Princeton police officers have told the Fund that, although there is an apparent increase in teen-age consumption of alcohol, the use of drugs seems to be holding steady or even declining slightly in some areas.

Plagiarism

Ms. Napolitano denies the plagiarism charge, pointing to 12 footnotes in her paper, five of which cited Ms. Ludmer's book. She took the University to court, asking an injunction to stop the institution from withholding her degree.

Superior Court Judge (Chancery Division) William A. Dreier conferred with lawyers from both sides in late April. Although the conferences were closed to all but the participants, records are said to show that Judge Dreier found that the University had over-reacted, and had failed to see the human problems involved. He said he was "shocked at this knee-jerk reaction to the label plagiarism."

Judge Dreier asked the committee to reconsider. It did so, and last week reached the same decision. The committee heard five hours of testimony before reaching its verdict.

Ms. Napolitano then asked President Bowen again to reverse the committee's decision. She was scheduled to present her case to him on Tuesday. If he decides against her, she can appeal to Judge Dreier, and will try for the next part of her suit, which is to sue the University for the libel and slander she charges is involved in notifying law schools of the plagiarism decisions.

In the court hearing last week, Judge Drier remarked that, if Ms. Napolitano "had simply used quotation marks, the courtroom would be empty and we wouldn't be here today."

At issue is whether she left out the quotation marks inadvertently because she was in a hurry, or whether the paper is a "blatant example" of plagiarism. The University, through its counsel, William J. Brennan III, has used that phrase.

The University has also stated that, in its view, the court has no jurisdiction over academic standards. Judge Dreier denied that he was usurping the University's right to self-governance and said he looked upon the case as a contract dispute between Ms. Napolitano and the University.

He added that he felt the faculty-student committee had interpreted some regulations to its own advantage, and the student's disadvantage. He stated that she had a right to cross-examine the Spanish professor, but was not allowed to do so in the first hearing.

Ms. Napolitano, a candidate for a Rhodes Scholarship, has a 3.7 average over her four years at Princeton.

use by University visitors.

Plans call for a plaza in front of Alexander Hall, open only to pedestrians whenever there is a performance inside the hall. Visitors' parking for Nassau Hall and other front campus buildings would be permitted there during the day. Venturi, Rauch and Scott-Brown have been working on the new entrance scheme.

OUTDOOR PROGRAM SET

By Princeton Education Center. Hiking, backpacking, canoeing, rappelling and outdoor adventure are available in the Princeton Education Center's 1982 summer camp experience.

The outdoor challenge program for 13-16 year old boys and girls is a modified Outward-Bound wilderness program offering three separate 12-day backpacking sessions in Stokes Forest, the Delaware Water Gap Recreation Area, on the Appalachian Trail and the Delaware River.

The outdoor awareness program for 10-12 year olds provides a gradual exposure to the natural environment through swimming, canoeing, water sports, new games, hikes, Indian lore, ecology, natural history and basic outdoor skills. The final three to four days of each session are spent backpacking.

Sessions are as follows: June 26-July 2, July 6-17, July 26-August 6, and August 10-21, all 12 day sessions.

Special trips are also offered 13-16 year olds: June 26-July 2, rock climbing; July 6-17, Appalachian Trail volunteer project; July 26-August 6, travel to natural sites (the "faces" of New Jersey); and August 10-21, Delaware River canoe trip.

Additional spaces are available in a staff development program for adults 19-25 during the first session. It will emphasize backpacking, canoeing, rappelling, climbing and other outdoor skills. The cost is $200.

Fees for the one-week programs are $175; 12-day programs, $300. Further information is available from the Princeton Education Center at Maclean House, Princeton University, 452-3340.

SUMMER OUTDOORS

With Watersheds. Even if you're only five, you can enjoy summertime outdoors in the summer Environmental Education Program sponsored by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association, and held in the fields and around the waters of the Association's headquarters near Pennington.

The year will begin July 5 (through July 16) with the program for "Present Day Pioneers," ages 12 and 13. Those who sign up will build a cabin, search for edible plants and canoe along Stony Brook on an overnight. They will also visit — and work on — a farm and explore the secrets of the Association's two watersheds. The group will meet daily from 9 until 4. The fee is $100

Starting July 19 and continuing through July 23, the Association will entertain ages 10-11 in the "Survivalistic Scientists" program, booked for each day between 10 and 3. Participants will find out whether solar water and air heaters can be made from everyday materials, whether lakes and ponds are really drying up and whether it's possible to survive the Watershed's "Outdoor Olympics."

One overnight is scheduled for this session. The fee for the five days is $65. ($50 for members)

"Continuous Companions" are ages 8 and 9. They will also meet for five days, starting July 26. Sessions have been scheduled for 10 to 2, and the fee is $50 ($35 for members).

Boys and girls in this group will help stop erosion by planting trees. They will also ponder the riddle of the increasing mouse population, and explore the hidden secrets of the Stony Brook and Watersheds Reserve.

The youngest — five, six and seven years of age — will join "Eye-opening Events," August 2-6, from 10 to 2 each day. The fee is $50 ($35 for members). Eye-openers will include holding a lamb,

276 GRADUATE
From Princeton Seminary. Princeton Theological Seminary conferred 276 graduate and professional degrees at its 170th Commencement. At the ceremony held June 2 in the Chapel of Princeton University, 166 men and women received the Master of Divinity Degree, the basic degree in preparation for the professional ministry.
The Commencement exercises mark the 50th anniversary of the graduation of the first woman to receive a divinity degree from Princeton Seminary. Muriel Van Orden Jennings, of Houlton, Maine, received the Bachelor of Theology degree in 1932, although it was not until 1956 that the United Presbyterian Church began to ordain women. Mrs. Jennings was honored at the Seminary's Alumni(ae) Banquet on June 1 and attended the Commencement service.

The Rev. Dr. Gail Anderson Riciutti, co-pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church in Byron, N.Y., gave the Commencement address, "To Live as if a Sojourner." A 1973 graduate of the Seminary, Dr. Riciutti is the first woman to be invited as the school's John M. Templeton, president of the board of trustees, delivered the invocation, and James H. Litton, C. F. Seabrook Director of Music, directed the Seminary's Chapel Choir. After the conferring of degrees, Seminary President James I. McCord delivered a farewell message to the graduating class.

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights is sponsored and prepared by the Parent Teacher Organization of the Princeton Regional Schools.

LITTLEBROOK: Attention all Littlebrook students and parents! Come and enjoy the Annual Family Picnic, Sunday June 6th from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Bring your picnic dinner or buy hot dogs there. Games, races, tug of war. Good company and great fun.

A jump-a-thon for students was held May 28th. The entire school tried their jump roping skills and songs. The students were especially delighted to watch the experts from the high school demonstrate their talents.

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Shaughnessy entertained Mrs. Klieder's and Mrs. Van Dyke's students at a rainy day picnic in their home. The students had a chance to ride on the apace trolley and saw two movies.

The K-A Kindergarten class discovered why Littlebrook School is so named. They took a mini-aquatic wading trip and found that there's more than water in the brook. Equipped with nets and buckets they collected newts, crayfish and insects, which they studied and later returned to the brook.

RIVERSIDE: Remember that recent cold, rainy weekend? That is when Riverside held its annual picnic. In spite of the weather and the indoor accommodations, a large number of people happily ate ice cream sundaes, drank root beer, listened to rock bands and generally enjoyed themselves.

Two classes presented programs to the rest of the school. Mrs. Derbyshire's second and third graders wrote and acted in four plays. They took the audience from a story about a ladybug, to a time adventure, to a fairy tale and finally to an under-the-sea adventure. The class definitely has some budding playwrights.

Mrs. Moore's kindergarteners put on "A Parade of Colors." Children dressed in primary colors hugged each other to produce secondary colors. Marches, songs and a special flag routine made this a lively program.

Riverside hosted the district's elementary schools' Band Concert. These children, playing in either a string ensemble or the band, displayed a degree of virtuosity for having played their instruments for barely a year.

May 27th was National Teachers' Appreciation Day. Throughout the district the PTO honored our teachers by providing them with desserts, coffee and most sincere thanks for their dedication and talent.

Mrs. Derbyshire's and Miss Pearlmutter's classes are busy planning their overnight camp-out. Designed to encourage fun, education and a cooperative group effort, the schedule includes such activities as trailblazing, rowing, relay races and roasting the essential marshmallows over a campfire. We wish them better weather than we had for the picnic!

COMMUNITY PARK: Taking up where Sesame Place equipment engineers left off, PEP students in Mr. Lynch's art class completed working models of playground equipment they designed for C.P.'s new playground. Each model, or its photographic record, will be studied by Phillip Danzig, architect for the playground. Wherever possible, the children's designs will be included in the final plans.

Most of the plywood models were complex structures with two horizontal levels and a series of vertical devices on which to slide, jump, swing, crawl, hang and bounce. High platforms had safety rails and soft surfaces beneath them. By working to scale and covering the cardboard understructure with grass (dyed sawdust), sand (sandpaper) or woodchips, students created the finished effect of a professional's model. They will be on display at the school this week.

June finds all CP students at the CP pool every afternoon from 1:30 to 2:30. Lifeguards are on duty and parents volunteer to use their whistles. On June 15 students who have been pen-and-tape pals with Mercer county special education students will have an opportunity to meet their pals. They'll get together for a modified field day and barbecue lunch at Johnson Park School.

Early Bird Tip! CP parents and friends: save October 8 & 9 for a big weekend. Details in the fall.

CALENDAR FOR JUNE:

- 1-2 JWMS, House 6, Appalachian Trail trip
- 2-3 JWMS, House 7, Sandy Hook trip

LET'S TALK ABOUT

THE GREEN WORLD HAS RIGHTS TOO!

with Sam De Turo
Woodwinds Associates

How would you like to be chewed on, or have your digestive tract removed? Plants don't like it at all!

Although many plants are blessed with the ability to regenerate their digestive tract (their leaves), if there is defoliation over several consecutive seasons, they may die. This is even more possible if other detrimental influences occur during the same period, such as drought, or disease infection. Even worse, once defoliated, needled evergreens can never regenerate their foliage.

Our trees, shrubs and lawns have a right to be protected as do those who wish to protect them on their own property. Protecting plants in the urban environment as well as in the forest may mean protection against insect or disease infestation to prevent defoliation. From east to west, severe infestation of gypsy moth, cankerworm, tent caterpillar, tussock moth and California oak worm have defoliated many of our shade trees, as well as our forest trees, causing the weakening of some and the death of others. Other pests attack shrubs and grass.

These pests can be controlled by the application of pest management techniques, including the use of pesticides. "Whoa!" some say. "I don't want pesticides used where I live. They are dangerous, harmful to my family and me, harmful to wildlife and the rest of the environment."

Do you really think that EPA would register a pesticide that might be harmful to you, your family, wildlife or the environment? Do you think that others would apply pesticides, work with them daily, if there was as much danger as many imply? Think about that.

Some say, "Well, we don't know enough about these pesticides yet. I don't want to be exposed." How much do you know about the many other chemicals that you are exposed to, such as food preservatives, or even common table salt? Did you know that, proportionately, common table salt is more toxic than many of the most commonly used dilute pesticides? Pesticides in use today are products of huge amounts of testing as well as very profound scrutiny by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency before they are released. Monitoring takes place on a continuing basis.

There are other considerations. How much wildlife would we have if we didn't have our trees and the vegetation that surrounds them? Plants and wildlife that enjoys them are part of the eco-system. If you allow a major portion of that eco-system to be destroyed by insects, you may not have wildlife to worry about.

How about you and your family? Are you aware of the benefits that trees provide directly to you?

The green world around us provides the oxygen that we need to breathe, filters and purifies the air, and provides natural air conditioners and a soothing beautifying influence on our daily lives. Can we run the risk of losing our green world to the ravages of insects? Aren't we entitled to the benefits that the landscape provides?

Don't forget the green landscape around you. It not only has rights, just as you do, but the green landscape is a significant part of your life! You can't live without it!

Microbiology, Writer's Potpourri, Puppetry, and a special course for parents entitled Systematic Training for Effective Parenting.

Traditional courses include Natural Wonders, Young Lawyers, How to Study, and a course for five to eight year olds in critical and creative thinking skills.

Sessions are held in the morning or afternoon, and run from July 6 through August 16. For further information and a brochure call 799-4913.

PROGRAM OFFERED

For Seniors. Two programs are offered at Community Park Pool this summer for senior citizens by the Princeton Recreation Department.

Lap swim sessions will be available Monday through Friday from 10 to noon for all senior citizen pool permit holders, beginning June 14. Those interested should call the Recreation Department.

Saturday, June 26, marks the beginning of Splashercise, an adapted exercise program for seniors in the water. The class will begin with warm ups and move into the water for a variety of exercises done to music.

This is not a learn to swim program: no swimming experience is necessary. The program will run for 8 weeks and costs $5. A season pool permit is not required. To register, call the Recreation Office at 921-9480.

Walking, Too. A walking program has been designed for senior citizens by the Recreation Department. Walking, one of the best all-around exercises, requires no previous instruction, it can be done anywhere, and costs nothing.

The walking program begins June 14 at 9:30 a.m. at the following locations: Mondays, Holly House; Tuesdays, Spruce Circle; Wednesdays, Redding Circle; and Thursdays, Community Park. Interested persons should call the Recreation Department at 921-9480.

ON ALCOHOLISM

To Give Course, Betts S. Gabrielsen, Princeton alcoholism counselor and psychotherapist, will give a course, "Marriage-Couples Counseling during Alcoholism Recovery" at the 11th summer Institute on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, sponsored by the University of Delaware and the Delaware Bureau of Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

TO GIVE ALCOHOLISM COURSE: Betts Gabrielsen, Princeton alcoholism counselor, will give a course at the 11th annual summer Institute on Alcohol and Drug Abuse at the University of Delaware.

Ms. Gabrielsen developed the program for the New Jersey Department of Health as part of the state's Alcoholism Counselor Training Program. She has just given the course at the New Jersey Training and Education Center for the New Jersey Department of Health.

A charter member and officer for five years of the New Jersey Alcoholism Counsellors' Certification Board, Ms. Gabrielsen is a member of the advisory board of the Mercer Council on Alcoholism and a consultant for Crawford House, the halfway house for women recovering from alcoholism. She started the out-patient alcoholism program for the Family Service Agency of Princeton, and ran the program from 1975 to 1980.

An associate of Jay D. Kuris, M.D., of Flemington, she co-ordinates alcoholism treatment practices and education for Dr. Kuris' staff of physicians, psychologists and social workers. She maintains offices in Princeton and Flemington.

There is no contest in the Township in either party. Republicans will run incumbent George Adriance, and Democrats will have Barbara Cantrill. Although several other Democrats had expressed interest, they withdrew in Mrs. Cantrill's favor.

A Princeton resident is also making a run for Mercer County Freeholder, creating a Democratic primary contest. Gertrude Dubrovsky, who lives in the Borough, is running for the Freeholder nomination as a Regular Democrat. The Regular Democratic Organization has endorsed Gilbert W. Lugosy, Paul J. Sollami and Anthony J. Cimino.

There is no contest for the Republican Freeholder nomination. Organization Republicans are Barbara A. Marrow, Dominick A. Iorio and Harry G. Parkin.

Republicans who want the Senate nomination are Congresswoman Millicent Fenwick, who has been Princeton's representative, and Jeffrey Bell.

Enough Democrats want the Senate nomination to make it look like a game of musical chairs. Opposing Mrs. Sigmond are Richard D. McAleer, Andy Maguire, Angelo R. Bianchi, Frank R. Lautenberg, Joseph A. LeFante, Howard Rosen, Cyril Yannarelli and Frank Forst. Donald Cresitello has withdrawn, although his name is still on the ballot.

For the Congressional seat representing the new District Seven, which includes Princeton, there is no primary race in either party. Democrat Adam Levin is unchallenged, since Mrs. Sigmond withdrew from the Congressional primaries and decided to seek the Senate nomination instead. The Regular Organization Republican is Matthew J. Rinaldo.

TOWNHOUSES GOING UP: Construction is underway for a 78-unit cluster of contemporary townhouses called Riverside, on the Delaware River in Ewing Township. Richard Dickson, left, the builder and developer, goes over plans with Harriet Whitlock and Roberta Canfield, Henderson Realty sales associates, and with John T. Henderson. Prices will range from the low 80's into the 90's for the larger units.

emotional support group, run by Rose Marie Sked, R.N., meets for six consecutive Tuesdays beginning June 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the ACS Unit Office at 88 Lakedale Drive in Lawrence Township.

The group provides a forum for feelings. Participants all facing similar circumstances, learn to help and care about each other. They recall the good times, as well as the bad, and work to find a direction for the future.

Anyone wishing to enter the Bereavement Program is welcome. The program is free, and no pre-registration is necessary. For further information, call the American Cancer Society at 394-5000.

NEW POSITION

For Edison President. The board of trustees of Thomas A. Edison State College has accepted "with regret" the resignation of president Lorraine R. Matusak at its recent meeting.

Dr. Matusak has accepted a position as program director in education and director of the Kellogg National Fellowship Program for the W.K. Kellogg Foundation in Battle Creek, Mich. Established in 1930, the Foundation has distributed over $585 million in grants to support programs in agriculture, education, and health. It is among the largest philanthropic organizations today, and supports programs in the United States, Canada, Europe, Latin America and Australia.

Dr. Matusak has been president of Edison State College since 1979. The College is located in Trenton but provides academic counseling in more than 30 locations throughout New Jersey. More than 3,600 adults have graduated from Edison since 1972.

The College was established to provide adults, many of whom are working full-time, with flexible methods of earning college credits. To earn credits, adults may transfer credit from other accredited institutions, take college equivalency examinations, and/or compile a portfolio to demonstrate college-level knowledge.

$20 CASH OR ONE OF 100 GIFTS.

(Choose either one when you invest in our 6-Month Certificate.)

Princeton Savings & Loan naturally pays the highest interest allowed by law on all Certificates of Deposit.

But now, smart investors can also take their pick from $20 cash or 100 exciting gifts when they open their Princeton Savings & Loan 6-Month Certificate of Deposit. It's called the Pick-A-Gift Program.

Here's how it works:

When you invest $10,000 or more for six months, you'll receive our "Gold" catalog that features 100 exciting gifts. Like Stoneware crystal cocktail sets, jewelry boxes, radios, calculators and much more.

Simply fill out the pre-paid gift certificate coupon attached to the catalog and mail it to Gift Headquarters. Your gift will be delivered to you within two to four weeks.

Or if you prefer you can choose $20 cash.

Stop by your nearest Princeton Savings & Loan office today and start your 6-Month Certificate of Deposit.

And then pick a gift. Or cash.

Because at Princeton Savings & Loan, we believe smart investors deserve a little something extra.

Offer limited to one gift per customer.

Federal regulations require substantial penalty for withdrawal of funds prior to maturity.

Drummond (John Witherspoon) and Helen Hoagland (Princeton High) received a gift to commemorate 30 years.

Those honored for 25 years with the system are Julia Nemeth (Littlebrook); Helen Povilaitis (Princeton High) and Alice Satterfield (Valley Road). Each received a pin.

The Association elected the following officers for the coming year: Eleanor Angoff, president; Carol Smith, vice-president; Julia Nemeth, secretary and Frances Heintz, treasurer.

WORKSHOP PLANNED

In Healing System. Polarity, a healing system that synthesizes many ancient and modern healing techniques, will be taught by Mahan Rishi Singh Khalsa on Saturday, June 12, from 1 to 5 at the Unitarian Church.

The session is sponsored by the Holistic Health Association. Mahan Rishi is a member of the 3HO foundation who practices polarity therapy and teaches Kundalini Yoga and nutrition. He studied at the International Polarity Foundation in New York.

For registration and further information, call HHAPA at 924-8580.

TO MAKE PINATAS

At South Brunswick Library. "Festive Pinatas" will be the theme of a two-part workshop to be held at the South Brunswick Public Library on Tuesdays, June 15 and 22, at 7:30. Mrs. Lilian Gorham will instruct participants in creating colorful pinatas for children's parties.

Pre-registration is necessary, and there will be a registration fee of $5 for the two workshops. To sign up call the library at (201) 821-8224.

CASSETTES AVAILABLE

Of Movies at Library. The Public Library will offer, for preview, the videocassette movie "Animal House," Tuesday at 7:30 in the Library's meeting room. The comedy, set at Faber College around 1962, follows the adventures of the rowdy Delta fraternity and stars John Belushi.

This is one of 12 titles now available for circulation for a two-night loan period and $1 service fee. Registered adult borrowers, with either a VHS or BETA format videocassette player-recorder, have access to this new extension of audiovisual service thanks to the Friends of the Princeton Public Library. Since September 1981, the Library has been a member of a video circuit of 12 New Jersey public libraries.

CAMPS, FOR SPORTS
 At MCCC. Six different sports will be offered in summer camps, starting June 28 under the auspices of Mercer County Community College. Each camp has limited enrollment.

Those scheduled are:

Tennis, June 28 through July 2; soccer, July 6 through 10; July 12 through 16; gymnastics, July 19 through 23.

Basketball, July 26 through 30; August 2 through 6; softball, August 2 through 6.

Baseball: for Little League ages 7-11, August 9 through 13; Babe Ruth League ages 12-15, August 16 through 20.

A Promise Not Kept.

To The Editor of Town Topics: This is an open letter to the Princeton Borough Council, the Princeton Township Committee, and the Princeton Sewer Operating Committee.

Last week I had occasion to visit, with a student, Princeton's old sewage treatment plant on River Road, and was shocked and appalled to see that the original primary settling tanks had been demolished (with great difficulty by explosives) and that the sludge heater house with its boiler (which used methane gas produced by sludge digestion) was also demolished and the reinforced concrete circular sludge digestion tank and its floating cover were in the process of being demolished.

No public announcement of pending demolition of this public property came from the local authorities. Over a year ago the Environmental Commission of Princeton had elicited a promise from local authorities that destruction of this property would not take place without prior notification. This promise was not kept.

The old sewage treatment plant had fantastic possibilities for alternative uses. A few years ago a proposal was made to convert this remarkably constructed plant (after fifty years the tanks were in excellent shape) into a solar-assisted recycling center, using sludge from the new Stony Brook Sewage Authority Plant and solid waste from the community to produce steam to drive a steam generator which could produce electricity.

This idea, from all indications, was not given serious consideration by the local governments in spite of the fact that it potentially could have taken care of a serious and expensive sludge disposal problem at the Stony Brook Sewage Plant, and would have solved the community problem of solid waste disposal in a more ecologically sound and less wasteful fashion. The Environmental Commission supported the idea of giving the solar-assisted recycling concept serious consideration and so recommended to the local authorities.

Assuming that careful, studied thought and consideration were given to the solar-assisted recycling concept by the local authorities (which was obviously not done) and that they had legitimate reasons for rejecting this idea, why weren't other ideas for alternative uses considered?

For example, the settling tanks and circular sludge tank, with a few modifications, could have been used for storing fuel oil which is used by the Stony Brook Sewage Treatment Plant in large quantities. This oil could have been purchased during periods of lower prices and would have saved the tax payers money, which they are now paying out in ever increasing sewer charges.

It is ludicrous to talk about energy crises and the need for conservation of non-renewable resources, and to promote frugality in government operations and services, urging tax payers to tighten their belts while they are hit with higher and higher taxes. How can these arguments be taken seriously when the local governments permit valuable, reusable, public property to be demolished at great cost and use of energy.

What sort of "economics" are we practicing here? What kind of logic is being used here? And finally — who makes these decisions without general public debate — to destroy at great cost to the local taxpayers, property that

SOMETHING old or new to sell? Try a TOWN TOPICS classified Call 924-2200 today

The least we should be able to expect now is that a public investigation take place to find out why such visionless decisions are made in a sophisticated town like Princeton, and to publicly identify and hold fully responsible those people who make these decisions.

GERTRUDE DUBROVSKY for MERCER COUNTY FREEHOLDER

I have seen

- young families who are losing their homes
- trained professionals who cannot find work
- workers who have lost jobs

I have seen

- the pain of neglected children and the loneliness of forgotten senior citizens
- the despair of people in county hospitals and nursing homes
- the frustration of the handicapped and the homebound

I have seen them all in Mercer County
I want to do something about it.

New Telephone Answering Service Opens in Town

At a time when some Princeton-based telephone answering services seem to be answering charges of malfeasance as much as telephone calls, a new one has planted itself at 245 Nassau Street. Ralph Procaccino, its manager, vows that it will be different.

It had better be. In the first place, Mr. Procaccino is a retired Borough police officer, who left the force in 1980 after 25 years of service. Second, Mr. Procaccino is the husband of Winifred Donahue, owner of the secretarial service at 245 Nassau and the name of the new venture, Winifred Donahue's Answering Service, suggests that she is putting her reputation on the line as well.

"Winnie's been here for 15 years," said Mr. Procaccino, sitting in front of the video display terminal that serves as the heart of the new service. "I'm a retired police officer. I know Princeton. We're a local business, taking an interest in the people we serve."

The phones began ringing, or actually the computer began beeping, at Winifred Donahue's Answering Service last month. Thus far Mr. Procaccino has enrolled almost 50 clients, including doctors and dentists, real estate agencies, and small businesses.

The service employs a half dozen people including the wife of a state trooper and a former switchboard operator at the Princeton Medical Center, who work close to 40-hour weeks. "We have two women here all day," said Mr. Procaccino. "That was my big push. We may twiddle our thumbs a lot of time, but we won't miss calls or leave people hanging on hold."

'Personal Attention.' Mr. Procaccino — a member of the Class of 1950 at Princeton High — had hopes of running his own business ever since he retired from the police force. He first worked briefly at Rosso's Cafe with an eye toward purchasing the business from Henry Rosso. But he and Mr. Rosso could not work out a deal and Mr. Procaccino took a job as a building inspector at the construction site for the new state prison in Trenton.

Earlier this year, he said "after talking to my wife and other people, I decided there was a need for a good, reliable answering service."

He and Mrs. Donahue began investigating other answering services, including some in New York and northern New Jersey. "Lots of services have absentee management said Mr. Procaccino. "The managers come in once a week. They pay the minimum wage and they're understaffed. It's uncaring. If you don't give it your personal attention the service won't be the same."

The Donahue-Procaccino team does not skimp on personal service. One day shortly after beginning operation, the answering service took calls from the two children of one of their clients, a businesswoman. Because of a mix-up with the babysitter, the kids were stranded at their schools and when they called mom's office all they could get was the answering service. Mr. Procaccino picked up both children and brought them to the answering service office. Mrs. Donahue provided pads and felt tip pens and let the kids draw until the sitter came by to pick them up.

The only unresolved issue is who is really in charge in this office. "Ralph says that when we incorporate he'll let me be the sergeant at arms — you know what that means," said Mrs. Donahue. Mr. Procaccino insisted, however, that he is willing to negotiate all such business matters. "And she's a tough negotiator," he added.

BUSINESS In Princeton

ADR DIVIDEND
Five Percent. Applied Data Research, Inc., State Road, has declared a five percent dividend for all shareholders of record on June 14, payable June 30.

John R. Bennett, chairman and president of the board of directors, commented to shareholders on ADR's success in several joint arrangements with major companies in the computer industry. He cited agreements with Digital Equipment Corporation, Four-Phase Systems, Inc. (a subsidiary of Motorola), Storer Broadcasting and Electronic Data Systems.

Mr. Bennett pointed out that the U.S. Army contract awarded to EDS and the software contracted to ADR, is the largest ever awarded by the Department of the Army for software products. The contract to ADR is estimated to provide up to $2.9 million in revenue in fiscal 1982 and $14 million over its projected 10-year life span.

In other business, Violet Wickenden was elected to the board of directors of ADR. She is the widow of Henry Wickenden, who was ADR chairman for 21 years.

ADR, with headquarters in Princeton, maintains offices and representatives in other U.S. cities, Canada, Europe, Asia and Latin America. The firm develops and markets system software products, application software and professional services.

FIRM OPENS DOOR
Of New Office. Tucker Anthony and R. L. Day, Inc. has opened its new office at 100 Nassau Street.

The brokerage firm has been on Palmer Square since the Clark, Dodge office opened in the early 60's. A decade later the office changed its name when it joined the Tucker Anthony system as it expanded throughout New England and the Mid-Atlantic states in the '70's.

The new office has expanded space for client consultation, and state-of-the-art equipment as access to all financial markets. The move coincides with the recently announced acquisition of Tucker Anthony by the John Hancock Group.

GRADUATION SET

By Nassau Christian School. The Nassau Christian School will hold its first graduation ceremony on Tuesday at 7. The school, which is affiliated with the Nassau Christian Center, was founded in September of 1980.

The objective is to provide an educational atmosphere that will foster growth in the knowledge of God as well as to develop the capabilities of the young people entrusted to their care. Nassau Christian School uses the Accelerated Christian Education Curriculum. There are various electives offered along with regular physical education classes, art, music and plays.

The tuition costs for the 1982-83 school year will be $1,000 for non-members of Nassau Christian Center and $900 for members. Payments may be broken down into ten installments. Applications are now being accepted.

For more information, call the school at 921-0264 or attend the graduation ceremony and meet the staff and students.

'GOD'S TROMBONES'

To Travel to Trenton. The First Baptist Church choir's production of "God's Trombones" will be performed on Sunday, June 13, at 5 p.m. at the Trenton High School Auditorium. The Ladies Guild of Shiloh Baptist Church in Trenton is sponsoring the performances. Tickets are $5.

"God's Trombones: Seven Negro Sermons in Verse," written by James Weldon Johnson, consists of spiritual renditions and poems that might take place in a Black church. Cecilia H. Drewry is directing the performance, which will feature Stanley Stroman, a native Trentonian who teaches at the Princeton School for Exceptional Children. Also appearing will be Sam Floyd.

Tickets may be purchased by calling Shiloh Baptist Church, 695-2248.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Princeton United Methodist Youth Choirs will present two works on Sunday at 7 in a benefit for the Appalachia Project and the choir robe fund. The double feature will include "One Hundred Percent Chance of Rain," based on the Noah's Ark story in the Old Testament, and "Celebrate Live!" taken from the New Testament.

Refreshments will be served. The church is at Nassau Street and Vandeventer Avenue.

All Saints' Episcopal Church has begun its summer schedule of services. Holy Eucharist will be celebrated Sunday mornings at 7:30 and 10, and there will be evening prayer Sundays at 5:30. On Holy Days, Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 5:30 p.m. The Rev. A. Orley Swartzentruber is rector.

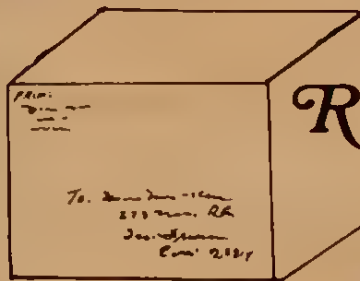

Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, has also begun its summer schedule. In addition to the 8 a.m. service of Holy Eucharist on Sunday mornings, there will be a single service of Holy Eucharist at 10 a.m. replacing the two services at 9:15 and 11:15.

Linda Mutz will offer a six-week course on Christian Exercise for Women 13 years and older at the Consolata Mission Hall, Route 27, Somerset, for six Mondays starting June 14 at 8.

Donation of $2.50 per session will be given to the Mission Center. Every class ends with a short meditation period. For further information and registration, call 297-9191.

Custom Homes By William Bucci Builders, Inc.

Dogwood Hill is a unique residential enclave on the west side of Mount Lucas Road in Princeton Township.

The site is naturally rolling and covered with native dogwoods and large shade trees.

Eleven custom homes will be built on lots of at least three quarters of an acre, in a cluster plan with seven acres of common open space.

William Bucci Builders, Inc., are local builders with a fine record of building quality custom homes in the Princeton area. They will build from their plans or yours. All lots are fully developed with public water, sewer and underground utilities of electric and gas.

Heathcote Farm - A Restoration

Condominium Apartments
On a Fine Old Estate Near Princeton

Four spacious condominium apartments are being created in this handsome and historic stone mansion. The generous sized rooms with high ceilings, decorative mouldings, long windows, oak parquet floors, and fireplaces all are being retained in combination with new kitchens, separate apartment laundry areas, and individually controlled gas heating and air conditioning systems.

The mansion stands on its own five acre site with rolling lawns, formal gardens, a swimming pool and an exquisite summer house. Lovely country views are protected by adjoining Green Acres land. Each apartment has its own outdoor private terrace to enjoy the tranquility and beauty of the unusual setting.

All of this is located in historic Kingston just a few minutes from Princeton and within easy walking distance to transportation to New York and Princeton.

Units have from one to three bedrooms, one to two baths, and individual garage spaces. Maintenance estimated to be $275 per month not including taxes and utilities. Priced from $196,000.

By J. Drew Foster,
Entomologist

GYPSY MOTH Part II

Gypsy moth caterpillars are beginning to feed voraciously and their damage is becoming very obvious. Several control choices are available — it's time to make a choice. For maximum foliage protection, spraying is required. We offer two insecticide choices: Dipel (Bacillus thuringiensis) the bacterial insecticide, and Sevin (carbaryl), a synthetic chemical. We obtain excellent control with both materials.

Another control measure is the banding of tree trunks to trap, kill, or repel the caterpillars as they try to climb banded trees. There are several tree-banding kits available commercially, plus several home-made alternatives. You should be aware of the following precautions: never apply sticky compounds such as TangleFoot directly on tree bark; never use petroleum products in place of TangleFoot; remember to remove trunk bands after mid-July; bands with adhesive backing may cause bark damage when removed; clear plastic bands may create excessive heat on the tree by concentrating the sun's rays; handle all commercial products with care — I am aware of at least two instances of allergic reactions requiring medical attention resulting from exposure to the bands.

Give us a call for all your landscape pest control needs.

ELEGANT FRENCH COUNTRY HOUSE on the crest of Rolling Hill Road. Beautifully landscaped with a stone terrace and pool, affording sweeping country vistas. Walking through an enclosed courtyard, you enter a spacious hall which leads into a large living room with fireplace and cathedral ceiling, dining room, kitchen, library and master suite. There is a guest room and bath on first floor as well. Upstairs is enormous storage space, two additional bedrooms and a well appointed bath. Call to see this very special property. $368,500

AN UNCOMMON COLONIAL. Not an antique, but just old enough to have a certain classic charm and many of the features so sorely lacking in its cousins being built today. To wit: plaster walls, random oak floors, slate roof and rich architectural detail throughout. Spectacular living room with stone fireplace and high ceiling framed in massive, hand-hewn oaken beams, dining room with bay window and French doors to a stone terrace; big, sunny modern kitchen; pine paneled study with fireplace; ground floor bedroom, bath and lavatory. Three twin bedrooms and two full baths on second. Attic, basement and two-car garage. On over two beautiful acres adjoining the Bedens Brook Country Club. More land available. $340,000

COMFORTABLE VICTORIAN in nearby Montgomery with some very pleasant surprises. Well proportioned living room and dining room, kitchen, half bath on first; three bedrooms, full tile bath on second. Now some surprises — a unique third floor family room 27 x 27 with woodburning Franklin stove, a large sturdy two story barn, and a two story garage. One and one quarter landscaped acres. $104,900

PCH Looking for New Place to Build, Hearing Same Story "Housing for Elderly Is Fine, But Not in My Neighborhood"

"Go, and never darken my door again."

Having been thrown out into the storm by Borough voters, Princeton Community Housing has been wandering, like some hapless heroine in a melodrama, from neighborhood to neighborhood, hoping somebody will take her in.

So far, all PCH has heard is "No." Housing is fine and it is needed, yes, indeed — but not here. Not in my neighborhood.

"It's the 11th hour, the 11th day," warns Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley. "The PCH project is hanging by a thread."

He conceded that opponents may have hoped for just that: delays that would finally bring the death of the project. PCH has until the end of September to break ground, unless the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is willing to grant still another extension.

Princeton Community Housing, Inc., a non-profit organization, had hoped to build an 89-unit apartment house for elderly people of moderate income, and for the handicapped. PCH's preferred site was the land on Hulfish and Chambers, west of the place where the Playhouse used to stand. When Princeton University decided to sell that land — Collins Development owns it now — PCH had to make new plans.

The next site, on the eastern side of the parking lot next to the library, was chosen by a group of 14 Borough residents known as The Steering Committee. But opponents rallied enough support to have the question placed in referendum, and in that referendum, the project was defeated.

So the question now is — where?

Where, indeed? The two sites now under consideration are both Borough-owned: the old sewer field off Elm Road, and the playground on Harrison Street.

Last week, PCH representatives and Mayor Cawley met with neighbors of both sites.

"... and guess what?" Mayor Cawley reported ruefully. "They don't want it. Housing's a good idea — but not here."

"Borough residents have been saying they really want housing. Well, we need people who support housing on one or the other of these sites, to come forward affirmatively and say 'Let's go ahead!'"

"People whose ox isn't being gored, who don't live near either one, are sitting back and saying nothing. That includes Dollars and Sense (the group that opposed the library site). Even Dollars and Sense said they weren't against housing."

Sewer Field. The old sewer field consists of six acres on Elm Road, opposite Wilson, in the Borough's R-1 residential zone, a zone which allows only single-family homes.

Before 1933, when the Borough's first sewage-treatment plant was built, the municipality had septic fields, as many rural home-owners do now. This one was known as the Northwest Sewer Field, to distinguish it from the Northeast Sewer Field.

It was a drainage field underlain with a series of pipes. Nobody knows, according to Borough engineer George Olexa, where the tanks are.

Now known as a "storage field," it has been used since 1933 as a dump for leaves and other horticultural debris, and a storage place for paving stones, asphalt and the like.

Mr. Olexa says it's all good, dirt fill, without any garbage or sludge.

If PCH were to build on the sewer field, the Borough would be paid for use of the land, as it would have been if the library site had been used.

Because the land is in the R-1 zone, PCH would need a use variance, obtained from the Borough Zoning Board. Or, Council could re-zone the area, after the usual ordinance introduction, Planning Board review and public hearings. Meanwhile, PCH's calendar moves closer and closer to September 30.

Harrison Playground. There are 3.64 acres here. The playground is behind the Bowers Building, the 18th-century brick structure on the corner of Nassau and Harrison. It's in the R-3 residential zone, where one- or two-family houses are permitted uses.

To build a multiple-dwelling unit in this zone, PCH would need a conditional use permit. That means PCH would have to go before the Planning Board, the body that grants such permits, and not to the Zoning Board, which gives use variances.

But conditional use isn't the only hurdle in the playground. Mr. Olexa points out that height restrictions would limit the building to three stories, with a use variance required if PCH preferred four stories, the higher structure, of course, taking up less playground land.

Also, the 30 percent coverage requirement means the building could only occupy about one acre on the three-acre plot, and this coverage is linked to a formula based on the number of habitable rooms. The apartment house could be only 120 feet long, and would have to meet a "usable open space" requirement. Bulk variances related to front-and-side-yard setbacks would also be needed.

These regulations do not apply to the sewer field land because it's in the R-1 zone, where only single-family houses are allowed.

Then, there is a possible political question: which would be better for PCH — the playground site and the Planning Board, or the sewer field site and the Zoning Board, one of whose members is Orren Jack Turner, an organizer of Dollars and Sense?

...and More. Opponents of the now-defeated library site, have said that PCH didn't search with enough diligence for other places to build.

Here is a list of properties considered by PCH:

•The big house on the southeast corner of Princeton Avenue and Nassau Street.

This house was offered, before the May 4 referendum, for $365,000. Crossroads Realty suggested PCH might raze the building and start anew. But the price was too high to begin with, the property is less than an acre and PCH would have needed a variance to build a larger structure.

•Princeton University property.

1. The rear of One Bayard Lane.

4. The field on Washington Road, across the lake in West Windsor.

In the first place, deed it means starting with a new restrictions apply to One Bayard Lane: if the University itself does not use the property, it is to go to The Medical Center at Princeton. Overall, the University told PCH it can't part with any land, except at full market value, because it is important to keep tuition down.

•The Princeton Shopping Center.

The five acres of grass between Terhune and the parking lot north of Epstein's is the area under discussion. Center management told PCH it would lease the land at $35,000 a year for 35 years, with options to renew, a figure which would be geared to rise with inflation.

"With the Borough, we had a 50-year lease," remarks realtor Karl Light, who conferred with the Shopping Center for PCH. "At $35,000 a year, that would have meant $1.75 million over a 50-year period. It is almost impossible to imagine that HUD would agree to this."

Also, in that part of the Township, the density is 8.7 units per acre, and PCH would have gone over that figure, even if the two-acre Kopp property were to be added.

•The Bowers Building, Nassau and Harrison.

This building is only available for lease, and not for purchase. Also, it bears an historic-site designation, which could make conversion difficult. It does, however, have the advantage of a central location, and probably most of the parking area PCH would require. PCH officials think that only a small sliver of park would need to be taken for parking.

•Valley Road.

PCH is not really interested in this site. The playground, on Valley Road, is heavily and frequently used. There have been no discussions with the school board about use of either the Valley Road Building or its land.

•Princeton Community Village.

This would take the heroine, in a sense, back to the old homestead. PCV, at the end of Bunn Drive, off North Harrison, was the first of PCH's apartments for middle-income and elderly individuals and families.

A three-acre triangle of land, adjoining PCV, is for sale. A density variance would probably be required.

•Property, in the Township, at the end of Thanet Drive.

Zoned for office and research use, this would be an expensive place to buy land, in Mr. Light's view.

And ... one individual who attended a PCH neighborhood meeting last week, suggested "Drumthwacket," New Jersey's new Governor's Mansion. Marquand Park has also been proposed, but there is a deed restriction.

In Township? If PCH were to return to Princeton Community Village, or reach an agreement with The Shopping Center — or even buy land on Thanet — it would be leaving the Borough for the Township. Many opponents, of course, hope it will do just that.

But Mayor Cawley protests: "I want a BOROUGH project!" the mayor says. "The last two were in the Township

— PCV and Redding Terrace

— and I want this in the Lawrence Towers, on West Borough.

Drive off Lower Alexander.

Mr. Light, also, is reluctant to move across the Borough Road, across the lake in West Windsor.

"If we go into the Township, community," he points out. "We'd have to start the whole application process all over again. Besides, that quadrant of the community already has PCV and Redding. Our original thinking, at PCH, was to have this housing throughout the whole community."

IT'S NEW To Us

THE COMPLEAT GARDENER Shops at Carkhuff's. While laying a new patio might not be the ideal pastime for a father on Father's Day, he will surely be delighted to know that Carkhuff's on Route 1 in Monmouth Junction has all of the materials to make such an addition to his home at most prices. Bricks, blue stone, bulk stone by the truckload, sand and mulch as well as the garden center's beautiful trees and shrubs can be delivered to the Princeton area.

The fun of completing the most challenging job, such as laying one's own patio, will be rewarded when the shopper learns that Carkhuff's has a handsome, varied stock of patio furnishings too. A big sale of patio tables, chairs, lounges, and umbrellas is now in progress. For instance tables with four matching chairs begin at as little as $199. Stunning sets by Woodard and many other famous brand makers are available in wrought iron, aluminum, and redwood. Director's chairs are $24.99.

Carkhuff's, a family business owned by four members, stocks a wide selection of outdoor cushions in many cheerful colors which will give older furniture a new look. Cushions for lounges, chairs, and table coverings are all on view in the friendly shop where a number of garden tools are sold as well. While such tools as a hole digger, a new shovel, wheelbarrow, rakes or a spreader might not be romantic, they are useful gifts for Father's Day and will make the work load a bit easier.

NEED A TREE? Carkhuff's Garden Center on Route 1 in Monmouth Junction has a big sale of trees and shrubs going on this month. Mrs. Lorie Carkhuff, one of the shop's four family owners, is seen here in front of her patio shop which stocks a good selection of outdoor furniture in aluminum, redwood, and wrought iron by famous makers.

A finishing touch for the patio might be one of the two types of railroad ties which are on sale this month at ten for $45. As long as one is going to so much trouble with lawn, tree and shrub upkeep, one might as well take advantage of Carkhuff's end-of-the-month sale. Landscaping is more fun when the prices are so good!

Many of the trees and shrubs which are currently on sale at 20 percent off, will enhance outdoor living and increase the privacy of those with neighbors close by. Large white pine trees are being sold at two for $90 while the spreading yews are two for $20 to mention a few. The choices are enormous.

This week there is a mix and match sale of bushes at three for $12. Japanese holly, junipers, azaleas and firethorn are all good selections. Lovely roses are three for $12 for the small ones and two for $18 for larger bushes.

Lorie Carkhuff and her husband Donald are always on hand to help their customers choose wisely. Bargains are not limited to the perennials, there are hundreds of annuals now on view as well, all sold at $1.39 per pack.

These colorful dahlias, marigolds, petunias and purple or white alyssum will look spectacular when combined with geraniums in one of Carkhuff's weathered barrels which are sold two halves for $20. As one drives up Route 1 they can be seen in front of a picturesque old flat wagon full of plants. Barrels full of flowers and the planters on sale look pretty anywhere in the garden or at poolside. The geraniums in bright red, white, and salmon are $10 a dozen.

Now is the time to pick up good buys and see the bushes while they are blooming such as glorious rhododendrons in lavender, red, white, fuchsia or deep purple. It will be fun to await their blossoms next year.

The Carkhuffs who have been in business there for nine years now have been so successful that they have opened another garden center in Greenbrook on Route 22. Store hours in Monmouth Junction are from 8:30 to 6 Monday through Friday, until 5 on Saturdays and from 9 to 5 on Sundays. Hurry up there before all the bargains are gone!

CLOTHES FOR SUMMER

At No. 1 Designers. Come summer, girls of all ages like to dress up a bit. Enough of the heavy tweed trousers which have been worn daily, or the loose fitting sweater which has become like an old friend. Let's pack them away in mothballs and find something cool and feminine at Designers No. 1. This unique dress shop located in Lawrenceville on Route 1 has a collection of clothes at discount prices which will take you to work or play from dawn right through the evenings hours.

One of the best features of the small shop, besides its excellent prices, is that while the selection of dresses for all occasions and sportswear is ample there is no over-choice. How many of us go into a shop to find something to live up or wardrobes, and encounter such a quantity of racks and shelves of the latest fashions that we walk out in total confusion? It is easy to shop at No. 1 Designers.

"We try to have a little bit of everything here to make it easy for the busy shopper, but we don't stock a great number of each piece," says owner Nancy Bailey who has filled her small shop with chic fashions by such designers as Nipon, Diane von Furstenberg, Mary McFadden, Jack Mulqueen, and Valentino.

The clothes found here have the latest lines with just enough of a classic look to last for many seasons. A puffed sleeve in a crisp cotton, a drop hip line in linen, or perhaps a peasant skirt will add flare this summer but will not be too obvious. They are attractively displayed at this charming boutique which is housed in a building dating back to revolutionary times. Peg floor boards and wooden beams combined with new touches such as bright flowers painted on the staircase make shopping at No. 1 Designers a pleasant unhurried experience.

However, it is worth hurrying over there if you want to be first in line for one of the alluring white dresses which are so popular this year. White ruffy dresses with big sleeves or inexpensive Indian cotton dress with inserts of lace by Star of India will double as a graduation dress and can be worn all summer. One especially pretty suit of fresh ribbed cotton with a puffed short-sleeved, covered button jacket will be useful in the country or the city.

The best news is that No. 1 Designers discounts prices from 20 to 50 per cent, a great boon in these days of record inflation. On the average the prices are at least 25 per cent off those in the department stores.

A splash of stripes mixed with geometrics can be found in various lightweight materials. They will surely catch the eye on a hot summer night. Sundresses and separates will offer versatility. The shop has a number of both which can be mix-matched with one of these new ruggle-neckline tee shirts in bright vibrant colors. The combination of turquoise and vivid red are especially pretty this season according to Mrs. Bailey.

Pure linen has made a great comeback this year; in fact the return to the natural fibers is most evident in the collection at No. 1 Designers. The linens by Nipon and Mary McFadden feature new linens which are very slim at the hip. One such dress by Carol Horn is available in bright orange — good for reunions!

There are a number of handsome suits for travel and work which can be worn with a either a new high-neck lace blouse or a dashing low-cut design for evening. For convenience, the shop has a selection of good-looking belts, scarves, jewelry and small handbags to complete the look.

The fetching silks are most practical because they may be worn all year and are so easy to pack for a trip, but Jack Mulqueen's fabric "silksational" is still more useful as it is washable. It is difficult to tell whether it's silk or not. Fashioned in a variety of lovely prints and geometrics, these dresses have easy lines which will be cool and comfortable.

Sportswear, including the versatile big tops which go with everything this year, is featured at the shop which also carries the Cheri wrap skirts in several fabrics and colors at $15.

Short shorts and pants are always a favorite and can be found in coll lightweight cotton. The year-round cotton sweater in hot summer pinks, pinks and yellows, will finish the look from No. 1 Designers. Sizes range from four to 14. Store hours are from 9 to 6 Monday through Saturday.

ART In Princeton

RICH COMPLEXITY

In Indian Painting. Indian painting has always seemed exotic in comparison with art of other societies. The small, exquisite works — often composed of combinations of tiny patterns created with an apparent passion for detail — bear little resemblance to their counterparts in Western art.

Indian culture, itself, appears to be elaborate, rich in ornament, and with a distinct point of view. Visible expressions of religion, architecture, jewelry, and even the artifacts used in daily life, are all characterized by intricately conceived complex ornament and a feeling of surface richness formed by combinations of color, pattern and texture.

The Indian paintings from the Polsky collection, now on display at the Princeton University Art Museum, reflect the visual richness peculiar to this culture. The display offers a sampling of the splendid variety of style found in the Mughal and Rajput manuscript and folio painting of the 16th through 19th centuries. These intensely colored, almost luminous, paintings were originally commissioned by rulers and nobility — the Mughal Emperors, their nobles and the rajputs who ruled the feudal kingdoms of Rajasthan, parts of central India and the Punjab Hills.

According to the catalogue, these works were not without Western influence. During the 16th and 17th centuries Hindu artists were made aware of Flemish and Italian engravings, European miniatures and Books of Hours. Mughal Imperial albums contained engravings by Durer, Van der Heyden and others. Persian art, too, influenced these artists. If one looks at these paintings carefully it is probably possible to find or invent elements that demonstrate the influence of all of the above. The work, however, has a unique character in which little remains of the other influences.

'TIGER' CENTENNIAL: Drawings created for the occasion by 55 of America's best known, funniest cartoonists are the focus of an exhibition celebrating the centennial of the "Princeton Tiger" at the Princetonian Gallery on the Main floor of Firestone Library.

The color itself is most unusual. There is a glowing intensity, originally created by burnishing, which develops a depth of tone approaching that of stained glass. The effect is intensified by golden accents and delicate, incredibly complex pattern and line that combine to create a surface iridescence.

The subject matter is often as complex as the style. Religious and secular themes are often presented in essentially architectural arrangements. Space is precisely divided into areas that include intricate figurative compositions, elements of landscape and still life, surrounded by borders as highly developed and intricate as the paintings.

The complexity and depth of this work is summed up in the catalogue by Cynthia Hazen Polsky, owner of the collection, who states that "...Within the confines of the manuscript page and the constraints of long-established painting practice, the Indian painting tradition encompasses ... the great universal concerns of human life ... with a freshness and grace beyond the boundaries of cultural differences and the passages of time."

Extensive Print Collection. Prints from the collection of a member of the class of 1962 allow us to share one serious collector's enthusiasm for his subject. The prints span centuries. The most recent is a Motherwell. Among the earlier works are prints by Durer, Goltzius, Tiepolo and Piranesi. There are also etchings by Goya, Hogarth and Redon, together with several etchings and a color linocut by Picasso.

The collection would be an exciting one to contemplate on the basis of content alone. The prints are representative of some of the most important artists that ever lived. This display, however, goes one step further. The anonymous collector has not only shared his prints, but has also offered his knowledge and enthusiasm. He has written an introduction to the display, together with several descriptive labels, to accompany the exhibition.

In each case, lucidly written copy deals with the exhibited material sharing aesthetic considerations that reflect the collector's concerns. As a result, we are able to enter a world of art appreciation in a manner that differs from the everyday in its sensitivity to the nuance and its level of scholarship. Looking at the collection becomes a far richer experience in which the viewer is able to understand and respond to a form of artistic notation which often passes unnoticed and to enjoy the pleasure that this knowledge brings.

At Firestone Library - Princetoniana Gallery. The 100th birthday of the Tiger, Princeton University's humor magazine, is the occasion for an exhibition of cartoons by some of the best known and often funniest cartoonists in the country. The celebratory display includes 55 never-seen-before cartoons created especially for the occasion. There are several Tiger alumni among the noted cartoonists including Whitney Darrow, Jr. '31, Henry Martin '47, Mike Witte '66 and W. F.

Brown, '50. There are also drawings by George Booth, Charles Saxon, Ed Koren, Arnold Roth and dozens of equally well known others. Covers and artwork from past issues of the Tiger, some dating back to the magazine's earliest years, will also be included in the display.

At Full House. The exhibition called Crafts, Spring '82, includes the work of more than 40 craftspeople. There are objects in glass, fabric, fiber, clay and wood. There are things to wear, things to put other things in, and things to look at, bake in, and use for eating and drinking.

The pottery in the display offers the greatest diversity. Nearly a dozen ceramists display functional and decorative pieces in styles that vary from the most traditional, classical forms to work that appears totally original in concept and, possibly, in function as well. Porcelain and stoneware.

News Of The THEATRES
'SCAPINO'
By NewStage. "Scapino," adapted by Frank Dunlop and Jim Dale from a Moliere farce, will open the season for the new summer theatre company called NewStage. Opening night will be Thursday, June 24 in Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus.
NewStage will also operate the cafe space in the basement of Murray Theatre. After-the-show entertainment will be cabaret style, with "many show tunes from old favorites."
Season subscribers are entitled to buy tickets for a special production of "The Belle of Amherst," with McCarter actress Penelope Reed playing the part of Emily Dickinson.

Ticket and subscription information may be obtained by calling NewStage at 452-8181 from noon until six.

MIME OFFERED
During Reunions Weekend. The Princeton Mime Company will present a Reunions Week show at Theater Intime.
The show will consist of a collection of favorites chosen from the company's all-original repertoire. Some of the most popular mime pieces created in the last two years will reappear on the Intime stage, including "Surfin' Down the Nile," "Mimik's Cube" (nine white faces portray a Rubik's Cube), "Let's Mime a Deal," and "The Mimetones." This will be the Mime Company's last show before its appearance at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival in Scotland this summer.
The show begins at 9:15 on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday and at 8:30 on Sunday. Admission is $2. For more information call Theater Intime at 452-8181.

'OLIVER' PLANNED
By St. Paul's School. St. Paul's School will continue to celebrate its 100th anniversary with the musical production of "Oliver." Performances will be Friday, and Saturday at 8, and the final showing will be Sunday at 2. The community is welcomed and may purchase tickets at the school office on Nassau Street.
Sunday's performance will be dedicated to the alumni and past teachers of St. Paul's School. A reception will follow the show in the school cafeteria for both students and faculty. All former teachers have been invited to join with their students in the centennial celebration.
"Oliver" is being performed by students selected from all grades. Leon Salazar, a sixth grader, portrays Oliver, and John Ryan, an eighth grader, plays the role of Fagin. Other major roles are portrayed by Daniel Belcea, Jennifer and Frederick Berstein, Eddie Bleacher, Matthew Cantwell, Jack Gominiak, Virginia Gryl, Timothy Harris, Colleen Gorman, Florence Jean-Louis, Christine and Barbara McCarthy, Jennifer Maroon, Patrick Perella, and Kurt Wilson. The entire production is under the direction of Veronica Brady, while the musical director is Tom Cott.

SIGN UP.....
For "Hello, Dolly". Auditions will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 8 and 9, for all the parts in Theatre-By-the-Lake's production of "Hello, Dolly," scheduled for performance July 16-17 and 23-24.
The theatre is in Geiger-Reeves Hall on the campus of The Peddie School, South Main and Ward Streets, Hightstown. Rehearsals will be from 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, starting immediately after selection of the cast.

Roles for women include the part of Dolly Levi herself; the ingenue lead of Irene Malloy and the second ingenue lead of Minnie Fay. The leading male role is that of Horace Vandergelder, and there are two other key parts for men.
Besides the smaller parts for both men and women,

SUMMER THEATRE

At Rutgers. Give playwrights a place to try out their ideas without the need to succeed commercially — that's the idea behind The Rutgers Theatre Company, which will begin its third season in June.

Performances are given in the air-conditioned Levin Theatre, off Clifton Avenue in New Brunswick, near George Street.

The first play chosen for the season is "Shivaree," by William Mastrosimone, a new work by the author of "Extremities" and "The Woolgatherer." It will be given, under John Bettenbender's direction, from June 15 to 27.

The second offering is "Trespassers Will be Prosecuted," by Peter Kenna, directed by William Esper and described as "a suspense-filled drama of survival that will test your instincts for self-preservation." It will play July 5 through 18.

The final offering, "The Secret Thighs of New England Women," also directed by Mr.

Bettenbender, is "a hilarious and touching peek behind the curtains of old New England families." Jan Paetow's play will be on stage from July 27 through August 8.

Series subscriptions, ranging in price from $17 to $25 for all three plays, are available from the Rutgers Theatre Company, Levin Theatre, New Brunswick, N.J., 08903.

WED. thru SUN., JULY 28-AUGUST 1
Nightly: PRETTY BABY 7:30 LAST TANGO IN PARIS 9:30

PRETTY BABY was one of 1978's most controversial films, no surprise since its setting is a high-class bordello in Storyville, the legendary red-light district of 1917 New Orleans. But despite the sensationalism that surrounded the appearance of 12-year-old Brooke Shields as Violet, the child prostitute, it is really a thoroughly chaste, civilized and intelligent work of art by Louis Malle, the director of Murmur, The Heart and the Atlantic City. With the help of Bergman's longtime collaborator Sven Nykvist, Malle drenches his film with an austere sensuality that is shocking only because of its insistence on the humanity of this supermarket-of desire. Pretty Baby is about the last days of Storyville (closed by the US Navy shortly after the outbreak of the war) and a tender, romantic memoir about Violet's brief liaison and marriage to an obsessed photographer (Keith Carradine), a character based loosely on the famous E. J. Bellocq, whose portraits of the Storyville whores are now recognized as classics. Violet and her life as a kind of perverse "Alice-in-Brotheland" raise questions about innocence and corruptibility, although Malle scrupulously avoids taking judgemental attitudes by looking at the world through Violet's child-woman eyes. By keeping his precarious balance, he has produced an elegant, ironic and poignant film about our hearts, minds and bodies. With Susan Sarandon and Frances Faye, USA, 1978, 109 minutes, R.

LAST TANGD IN PARIS remains the most powerfully erotic and liberating movie of our time. Bernardo Bertolucci's employment of sex combined with passion and

WED. thru SUN., AUGUST 4-8
Nightly: TIME AFTER TIME 7:30 / 2001 9:30

TIME AFTER TIME marks the first directional effort of Nicholas Meyer, who wrote the highly successful 7½% Solution. As evidenced by his earlier film, Meyer has a fertile imagination, and he has once again created an imaginary meeting of the famous. This time, he propels H. G. Wells (Malcolm McDowell) into the future in pursuit of Jack the Ripper (David Warner), who has escaped 19th century England in Wells' fabled time machine. The two match wits in contemporary San Francisco, where they are joined by Mary Steenburgen, an innocent bank teller who falls in love with Wells and becomes a crucial link—and a pawn—in the chase. Thanks largely to Meyer's literate screenplay, the result is a delightful and intelligent entertainment—there is no better word—a combination of thriller, romantic comedy and social comment. The film's wit stems mainly from Meyer's seemingly preposterous confrontation between futurist Wells and a world that in no way matches his predictions of things to come. And by transforming his characters from Victorian England to the present day, Meyer is even able to make a couple of points in passing about the escalation of violence and the persistence of evil. As Wells, the charming, persevering and resourceful inventor, McDowell (A Clockwork Orange) is wonderful in a role unlike anything else he has ever done on film. And Steenburgen's portrayal of a liberated woman fighting and loving in two centuries is a pleasure to watch. Time After Time is as sweet as it is clever, but never so clever that it forgets to be fun. USA, 1979, 112 minutes, PG

2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY is one of those landmark films which changed the course of the cinema. Stanley Kubrick's science fiction epic traces the technological history of man while exploring the dynamics of space travel, outlining his inability to cope with the unknown. A staggering achievement technically and imaginatively, made by a man who truly possesses the drives of both science and fiction, this investigation of man's relationship to machines and to his fellow man set a new standard against which all science fiction films continue to be measured. With Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood. USA, 1968, 139 minutes, G

A vertical black and white photograph showing a close-up of a tree trunk. The bark is rough and textured. A bright, circular light source, possibly the sun or moon, is visible through the branches in the center of the frame. The image is oriented vertically.

ALL THAT JAZZ is Bob Fosse's razzle-dazzle autobiographical musical that breaks new ground by melding music, dance and drama on a level no film musicals have achieved previously. Fosse's subjects: art and show business, dancing and women, sex and desire, and love and glory and lily. In style, it resembles Fellini's B&B, but the idiom is strictly Broadway. Roy Scheider plays Joe Gideon, a hotshot stage and screen director-choreographer on the verge of death following a coronary that requires open-heart surgery. Gideon is a workaholic: uppers, downers, medicine, cigarettes and women help him get through each day and night. As he simultaneously rehearses a new musical and edits a new movie, he carries on harried, selfish relationships with his estranged wife and current lover (Leland Palmer and Ann Reinking), and also plays his life back through conversations with Angelique (Jessica Lange), who represents death. Gideon is cruel to those around him because everyone—his women, his daughter, his casts—take second place to his ego and his work. He not only looks like Fosse, but shares his personal and professional history, and while you may dismiss All That Jazz as an ego-tripping public catharsis, it's a questioning and self-love. This is a movie that comes hurtling at you, in dazzling editing and cinematography. It brims with the nervous energy of fear, self-mocking irony, desperation, and an insane kind of hope. Fosse has courage that is in itself a kind of genius, and he makes all of this work by a savage sincerity that outlances sentimentality. And if he makes death seem so much fun, it's because All That Jazz is about living life to the hilt. USA, 1979, 122 minutes, R.

S.O.B. is a movie with teeth, and it's not afraid to bite. It's a real hatchet job on Hollywood, performed by one who knows: writer-director Blake Edwards (10). Edwards (who wrote the first draft of his screenplay back in 1972, when his Hollywood career was at rock bottom) Richard Mulligan plays a successful producer of blacklock films whose $30 million musical has opened to universal scorn and public rejection. His wife (Julie Andrews), the squeaky-clean star of the film, leaves him. The studio recalls the movie and demands a re-cut, and he becomes increasingly suicidal, grappling with the inligniting and backbiting going on between pretty agents, gonzo musical actors, venomous columnists, and pompous studio executives. But what—all is not lost! Mulligan has an inspiration: he will turn his family musical into a softcore X-rated porn epic that will outgross The Sound of Music, if he can persuade his wife to bare all, and the studios to fork over additional millions for the re-make. S.O.B. is a movie with the courage of its bleak convictions, and the Hollywood types Edwards so viciously caricatures are portrayed with high spirits by a stellar cast, including William Holden, Robert Preston, Loretta Switt, Robert Laughlin and Shelly Winters, to name only a few. The film's dominant mood is anger and outrage, with more nonstop sarcasm to be heard in any movie since Twentieth Century. On a colossal scale, Edwards has bitten the hand that feeds him, and while you may pour out his heart, pumps pure te USA, 1981, 121 minutes, R

WED. thru SUN., JUNE 23-27
Nightly: RAGING BULL 7:30 / LENNY 9:45

RAGING BULL is extraordinary, electric, perverse, brilliant—words which scarcely do justice to Robert De Niro in this unflinching screen biography of Jake La Motta, the middleweight boxing champion from 1949 to 1951. But director Martin (Taxi Driver) Scorsese's film is only indirectly about boxing, the blood and brutality of the ring are an extension of the emotional primitivism of the characters in the tight, relentless, and sometimes funny look at a Bronx street kid who could never confine his fury to the gym. The tight scenes are the best ever filmed, and only slightly more brutal than La Motta's emotional eruptions with family, friends and the Mob. As La Motta's second wife, screen newcomer Cathy Moriarty is a Lana Turner with a telegraphed manager-brother, while yet another newcomer, Joe Pesci, is splendid as Jake's beleaguered manager-brother. But it is De Niro who dominates the movie, seeming to pour his performance out of his own soul. He trained for a year with La Motta, not only mastering his speech, behavior and boxing style, but even gained 56 pounds to show his physical decline as a pathetic nightclub comic in the 1950's. This is Scorsese at his best. De Niro and Oscar paired with dazzling, hyperkinetic direction. In fact, the entire film is played at such high pitch that it can exhaust audiences that don't come prepared. There is appalling violence in Raging Bull, but it is in Greek tragedy, the violence is the shock of a total apprehension of the humanity of these characters. And at its heart is the mystery of La Motta himself, which is what separates him from all other light movies—or from most movies about anything, for that matter. USA, 1980. 128 minutes, R.

LENNY is director Bob Fosse's choreographed interpretation of the Lenny Bruce story, set to the rhythms of the nightclub world and the jazz pulse that were Bruce's

LIVE IN CONCERT

Special Holiday Weekend Late Show:

Friday, Saturday & Sunday, July 2-3-4 at 11:15pm

Funky, outrageous, and untamable, Richard Pryor is the funniest comedian of our time, the man who took the jackhammer profanity of the black underclass and turned it into a scathing, hilarious street poetry. His current box office smash, Richard Pryor Live on the Sunset Strip, is sweeping the nation. But as good as it is, it can't hold a candle to his first concert film Richard Pryor Live in Concert, made three years ago, which represents Pryor at the peak of his art. In this masterpiece one of the funniest movies ever made, Pryor gives a whirlwind of astounding effects, comic energy and inspiration. His "Macho Man" routine is the ultimate skewering of male sexual arrogance; he demonstrates his amazing ability to become a victim from monkeys to malmutes; and he plays a heart attack—not just the animal (which he was) but the heart attack itself, turning pain and terror into something crushingly funny and compassionate. Pryor draws from you a laughter you didn't know you had, the sound of solidarity. USA 1978, 78 minutes, R (and X for language)

 SATYRICON 9:15

THAT OBSCURE OBJECT OF DESIRE is Luis Bunuel's 34th feature, and finds the great Spanish master, at the age of 77, still poking fun at the age and at himself. This is his Don Giovanni, combining the effervescence and gaiety of Discreet Charm with the wit of Tristana. Mathieu (Fernando Rey) is a fifty-year old widower who goes about his business completely untrifled in our violent, modern world until he falls hopelessly in love with a young woman, Conchita. He pursues her relentlessly from Paris to Seville, and his pursuit becomes an odyssey of sexual frustration as she continually eludes, then withdraws, her virginity. Mathieu's story becomes that of desire itself, growing funnier and more desperate as its object grows increasingly more obscure. And since he sees Conchita as half-whore and half-virgin, Bunuel has her played by two different actresses, with her voice provided by yet a third. This is an upside-down romance in which love, Bunuel tells us, is a "devastating act of subversion." With his usual surrealistic mastery, he creates a world as logical as a theorem, as mysterious as a dream, and as funny as a vaudeville gag.

Nightly: BREAD AND CHOCOLATE 7:30
STARDUST MEMORIES 9:30

BREAD AND CHOCOLATE proved to be the biggest foreign film box office success since Cousin, a record that stood until La Cage aux folles. Made in 1974 by director Franco Brusati, it's a witty, compassionate and bittersweet social comedy whose themes include the clash of antagonistic cultures, the agony of the outsider wanting in, and the ordeal of assimilation. Nino Manfredi plays an impoverished waiter from southern Italy trying to squeeze out a meagre living in Switzerland, a land of opportunity that doesn't exactly welcome him. Nino is a misfit in a world of prosperity, and the film follows him from one unlucky break to another. As his mishaps grow increasingly degrading, and he sinks lower and lower into the economic and social depths, he becomes a kind of comic Everyman, caught between the person he no longer chooses to be, and the dream he doesn't fit—eternally rejected, yet eternally hopeful. Manfredi is no Chaplin, and Brusati tends to patronize Nino, keeping him as an object of our condescension. But he does know how to blend commentary with funny situations, and deliver a caustic critique of two national temperaments. With Anna Karina. Italy, 1974. 111 minutes.

STARDUST MEMORIES is perhaps Woody Allen's boldest, most innovative and most provocative movie to date—even more so than Interiors. It evokes the mood of Fellini's 8½ as it swirls through the troubled recollections of a film director, Sandy Bates (Allen), who is renowned on earth, at film seminars, and even in outer space as a clever comedian. But he has decided to stop making comedies and concentrate on more serious movie fare. The setting is a weekend film course at a New Jersey seashore resort, where Sandy finds himself a man at several crossroads in his life simultaneously, re-examining his career with the film buffs in attendance at the seminar, dealing with the studio executives who are not happy with his new movie, and trying to sort out his love life from among the three women he has been seeing, is seeing, and would like to see (Charlotte Rampling, Jessica Harper and Marie-Christine Barrault). Allen's targets are many groupies, film critics, pseudo-intellectuals, and most importantly, himself. Surrealist in tone, Stardust Memories employs fantasy sequences as Sandy deals with the past and the present, including one visit from outer-space creatures who advise him to tell lunnier jokes. This is a Woody Allen movie that can be taken lightly and heavily, and while its basic impulse is comic, the comic and the serious most often tune into one another, and the split is healed in a burst of dark laughter. USA, 1980, 93 minutes. Nightly: KRAMER vs. KRAMER 7:30 / ORDINARY

KRAMER VS. KRAMER is a superior soap opera about the death of a family that earns its tears honestly. And although it is as satisfying as a timeless tragedy about marital and parental love, it also travels across a minefield of contemporary social issues, many of which are not explicitly stated. Writer-director Robert Benton has adapted Avery Corman's best-selling novel into a high-powered, emotion-packed domestic drama about fathers and sons, husbands and wives, and the issue of child custody. Dustin Hoffman is Ted Kramer, a self-absorbed ambitious advertising executive insensitive to the needs of his wife, Joanna (Meryl Streep). He is stunned one day when she walks out on him and their seven-year old son (Justin Henry). Now compelled to concentrate on his son, he puts enormous love and energy into being a father, only to have a more self-assured Joanna return after eighteen months to claim custody. Hoffman's performance is his best since Midnight Cowboy. Streep shatteringly portrays the wife's anguish and frustration; Justin Henry is heaven-sent as their son, utterly natural and totally endearing, and the supporting cast (including Jane Alexander and Howard Duff) has nary a weak link. Kramer Vs. Kramer sharply questions established attitudes about custody and its only "villain" is the fact that even with right on both sides, one side must lose. Benton gives his movie its depth and complexity by challenging the audience's preconceptions and snap opinions at every turn, and by clearing away the clutter of that most American genre, the tear-choked melodrama.

Nightly: PRETTY BABY 7:30 LAST TANGO IN PARIS 9:30

PRETTY BABY was one of 1978's most controversial films, no surprise since its setting is a high-class bordello in Storyville, the legendary red-light district of 1917 New Orleans. But despite the sensationalism that surrounded the appearance of 12-year-old Brooke Shields as Violet, the child prostitute, it is really a thoroughly chaste, civilized and intelligent work of art by Louis Malle, the director of Murmur, The Heart and the Atlantic City. With the help of Bergman's longtime collaborator Sven Nykvist, Malle drenches his film with an austere sensuality that is shocking only because of its insistence on the humanity of this supermarket-of desire. Pretty Baby is about the last days of Storyville (closed by the US Navy shortly after the outbreak of the war) and a tender, romantic memoir about Violet's brief liaison and marriage to an obsessed photographer (Keith Carradine), a character based loosely on the famous E. J. Bellocq, whose portraits of the Storyville whores are now recognized as classics. Violet and her life as a kind of perverse "Alice-in-Brotheland" raise questions about innocence and corruptibility, although Malle scrupulously avoids taking judgemental attitudes by looking at the world through Violet's child-woman eyes. By keeping his precarious balance, he has produced an elegant, ironic and poignant film about our hearts, minds and bodies. With Susan Sarandon and Frances Faye, USA, 1978, 109 minutes, R.

LAST TANGO IN PARIS remains the most powerfully erotic and liberating movie of our time. Bernardo Bertolucci's employment of sex combined with passion and emotional violence was a real cinematic breakthrough of the 70's. Marlon Brando plays a middle-aged American widower living in Paris who, in despair, sets up an apartment with an anonymous young girl (Maria Schneider) for afternoons of pure sexual encounter. These sessions form the core of the film, during which she falls in love with him and he instructs her in sexual experiences that are still new in conventional films—scenes that are frenzied, furious celebrations of the ecstasies and limitations of sexual passion. Both Bertolucci and Brando dare to pull out all the stops, and the result still shocks, antagonizes and embarrasses. Italy/France, 1972, 125 minutes, X

WED. thru SUN., AUGUST 4-8
Nightly: TIME AFTER TIME 7:30 / 2001 9:30

TIME AFTER TIME marks the first directional effort of Nicholas Meyer, who wrote the highly successful 7½% Solution. As evidenced by his earlier film, Meyer has a fertile imagination, and he has once again created an imaginary meeting of the famous. This time, he propels H. G. Wells (Malcolm McDowell) into the future in pursuit of Jack the Ripper (David Warner), who has escaped 19th century England in Wells' fabled time machine. The two match wits in contemporary San Francisco, where they are joined by Mary Steenburgen, an innocent bank teller who falls in love with Wells and becomes a crucial link—and a pawn—in the chase. Thanks largely to Meyer's literate screenplay, the result is a delightful and intelligent entertainment—there is no better word—a combination of thriller, romantic comedy and social comment. The film's wit stems mainly from Meyer's seemingly preposterous confrontation between futurist Wells and a world that in no way matches his predictions of things to come. And by transforming his characters from Victorian England to the present day, Meyer is even able to make a couple of points in passing about the escalation of violence and the persistence of evil. As Wells, the charming, persevering and resourceful inventor, McDowell (A Clockwork Orange) is wonderful in a role unlike anything else he has ever done on film. And Steenburgen's portrayal of a liberated woman fighting and loving in two centuries is a pleasure to watch. Time After Time is as sweet as it is clever, but never so clever that it forgets to be fun. USA, 1979, 112 minutes, PG

2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY is one of those landmark films which changed the course of the cinema. Stanley Kubrick's science fiction epic traces the technological history of man while exploring the dynamics of space travel, outlining his inability to cope with the unknown. A staggering achievement technically and imaginatively, made by a man who truly possesses the drives of both science and fiction, this investigation of man's relationship to machines and to his fellow man set a new standard against which all science fiction films continue to be measured. With Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood. USA, 1968, 139 minutes, G

Nightly: HEAVEN CAN WAIT 7:30 / LA CAGE AUX FOLLES 9:15

HEAVEN CAN WAIT was Warren Beatty's smash hit of the summer of 1978—remember? Based on the popular 1941 film fantasy Here Comes Mr. Jordan, it's a romantic comedy that comes close to capturing the ingenious, madcap spirit of the 30's comedies. As with Reds, it was produced, co-directed (with Buck Henry) and co-written (with Elaine May) by Beatty himself, and it's a tribute to his craft. Taste, and heart! that his film gets funnier, richer and more moving as it progresses. Heaven Can Wait has everything going for it: big laughs, populist politics, billyow sequences set in heaven, a murder plot, a climactic Super Bowl game, and a supporting cast of choice comic actors. Beatty plays a Los Angeles Rams quarterback who is accidentally summoned to heaven by an overly zealous celestial escort (Henry) and subsequently returned to earth in the body of another man, an arrogant millionaire so odious that his wife (Oyan Cannon) and private secretary (Charles Grodin) have just attempted to murder him. While escaping his pursuers, Beatty himself romantically pursues a beautiful Englishwoman (Julie Christie) who has arrived to protest his callous corporate maneuvers. Though the film is set in modern Los Angeles, it never gives us time to question its fantastic premise or its hopelessly romantic conviction that love can triumph over class differences. Physical melodramas, and even death. Beatty is a genuine Hollywood classicist, but he's made a thoroughly contemporary comedy that is old-fashioned only in the satisfaction it brings the audience. USA, 1978, 100 minutes. PG

LA CAGE AUX FOLLES was the sleeper success of the summer of 1979. Who would have thought that director Edouard Molinaro's little-heralded French-Italian farce would become the largest grossing foreign film in Hollywood history? The reason really isn't hard to explain. This is a non-stop, laugh-out-loud funny movie, perhaps the greatest drag comedy since Billy Wilder's Some Like It Hot (1959). La Cage aux Folles is the name of the Transvestite nightclub run by a pair of aging uncloseted homosexuals (Michel Serrault and Ugo Tognazzi), one of whom has a son who has been raised by the unorthodox couple. When it comes time for him to marry, what do you...nk? Right, his fiancé's father turns out to be Chief of the Department of Morals. Fearing the worst, the young groom persuades his "parents" to "straighten up" for the occasion—no mean task—which is the set-up for a classic boulevard farce in which everything you think could go wrong does—and worse. Molinaro's film is convention itself, and follows the old rule that whatever is hiding in the closet must come out. The clockwork formulas—and the image of homosexuals as swish queens—are old-fashioned, but Tognazzi and Serrault invest their parts with great comic zest and delicate pathos. The result is that the comedy, as in Chaplin's films, works on two levels: as great slapstick, and as sly comment on our unexamined assumptions about masculinity and femininity. APOLCALYPSE NOW
Wed., Thurs. & Sun.: Two showings nightly at 7 & 9:30
Fri. & Sat.: Two showings nightly at 7:30 & 10

APOLCALYPSE NOW was easily the cinema event of the late 1970s, one of those epic films that (like Reds) seem to burst forth on the screen larger than life, surrounded by controversy and debate. Inspired by Conrad's Heart of Darkness, it remains the consummate statement about the horror, the madness, the sensuousness and the moral dilemma that was Vietnam, and for this, if for no other reason, it demands to be seen. And as ultimately unsatisfying as it may be for many (especially the ending), it contains so much sustained brilliance that one cannot help but applaud Francis Coppola's ambition, daring, and perseverance. Martin Sheen plays an Army Special Forces Captain who is sent on a delicate mission to "terminate with extreme prejudice" a renegade Green Beret Colonel (Marlon Brando) who has taken a private army of Montagnards into Cambodia and established his own kingdom, from which he is running his own war. As Sheen travels unriver in a Navy patrol boat, whose crew is a microcosm of the GI's who went through Vietnam, the war unfolds before him with almost hallucinogenic clarity, culminating in his final confrontation with the ultimate madness of Brando's Colonel Kurtz—ultimate because he's taken the logic of the war and carried it to its logical extreme. All of Coppola's gifts as a major film artist are on display here in a profusion that would be overwhelming, except that one of those gifts is the ability to achieve a crystalline balance of every element. Through the all-but-burned out eyes of Sheen, Apocalypse Now chronicles one episode after another of horrific waste and pain with an energy whose adolescence is that of a moviemaker working at the height of his manipulative powers, assaulting both our minds and our senses. From the incongruity of GI's waterskiing and surfing during an assault, to a beautifully choreographed napalm attack on a village, to the surrealistic madness of Lt. Colonel Kilgore (Robert Duvall) who rides to battle to the accompaniment of Wagner's Ride of the Valkyries, Coppola evokes the frightening, confusing, wrenching tragedy of the only war this nation has ever lost. USA, 1979, 146 minutes. R

WED. thru SUN., JULY 21-25
Nightly: COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER 7:30 / THE ROSE 9:45

COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER is a kind of Star is Born country-style, in which Sissy Spacek won a richly-deserved Oscar nomination for her portrayal of singer Loretta Lynn. Based on Lynn's autobiography, the film follows her progress from an awkward but spunky Appalachian teenager and hillbilly bride (at thirteen) in Butcher Holler, Kentucky, to the realization of her composing and singing talent, to ultimate superstardom in the country music world. Director Michael Apted captures both the poverty and pride of the young Loretta's Appalachian homestead without resorting to Hollywood sentimentality. Loretta's early successes—in local honky tonks, on the radio, at the Grand Ole Opry—are thrilling to witness, and we root for her throughout, because the movie has shown so carefully just how hard she has worked. To be sure, the script about abounds in show-biz biography clichés such as marital problems (Lynn had four children by the time she was twenty), the perils of success, and predictable traumas at the top. But the winning performances of Spacek and the strong supporting cast make the clichés work. Notable among them are those of Tommy Lee Jones as Mooney, Lynn's husband-manager-mentor, Levon Helm (of the rock group The Band) as her father, and Beverly D'Angelo as country star Patsy Cline. From start to finish, this is Sissy Spacek's movie. She not only ages and sings convincingly (more than thirty Loretta Lynn songs), but she gives her character a spine of strong emotion, pure innocence, and instinctive crack-barrell wit. Inside the shy and often childish teenage girl, there is always a glimmer of the powerful woman she would become. USA, 125 minutes, 1980. PG

THE ROSE is clearly based on the life of the late Janis Joplin, although the film officially contends that Bette Midler's electronic performance as a rock star whose life is "like a grenade range" is an amalgam of several of the self-constructing diaries of the sixties. The Owne Miss M makes a spectacular film debut as a rock singer falling apart because of overwork, drugs, booze, and her desire to prove her worth as a person. Midler gives us the Rose complete with flowers and thorns. It's a levered, fearless portrait of a tormented, gifted, homely, sexy child-woman who succeeds beyond her wildest dreams, and sings her heart out until it explodes. Director Mark Rydell lets the material dictate the film's flamboyant style, and makes the most of Midler's expansive talent. She makes the talented, vulnerable Rose wholly her own creation, and the soundtrack showcases her wonderfully versatile voice, while her comic and dramatic flair is remarkable for a film debut. Midler is ably supported by Alan Bates as her tough, scheming and understandably fed-up manager, and Frederic Forrest as the AWDL Army sergeant she falls in love with. But it's her film, she's onstage nearly all the time, and whether revealing her torment, raising hell, or lighting up a concert stage, Midler overshadows all. USA, 1979, 134 minutes. R

Nightly: BREAKER MORANT 7:30
BLACK & WHITE IN COLOR 9:30

BREAKER MORANT remains arguably the best of the Australian film invasion of the 1980's (The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith, Gallipoli, My Brilliant Career, etc.). The film is 1901, and Harry Morant, a horse-breaker—hence the title—is an Australian soldier fighting for the British Army in its guerrilla war against the Boers in South Africa. When he sees his best friend shot and mutilated by the enemy, he takes his own personal revenge and orders the execution of some prisoners. Morant and two soldier companions are tried by the British and court-martialed in a trial that rocks the high command all the way back to Whitehall, and turns Morant himself into a national folk hero. Based on a true story, Breaker Morant makes a clear, it coincidental, parallel between the Boer War—this century's first large-scale conflict—and its most recent, the Vietnam War. This is a courtroom drama, but the story is told mostly in flashback, and there's plenty of drama in the courtroom too, thanks to the fine performances by Edward Woodward (as Morant) and Jack Thompson as his young and impassioned defense counsel. Director Bruce Beresford brings a penetrating sense of period and place to the screen, the terrain and expanse of the South African veldt are as overwhelming as the power of Empire. In short, a film which, while small in scale, achieves epic status. Australia, 1980, 107 minutes

BLACK AND WHITE IN COLOR, the dark-horse winner of the 1976 Oscar for Best Foreign Film, is set in the dry, hot savannah of West Africa in 1914. The inhabitants of a small French trading post live in easy alliance with the members of a tiny German garrison a few miles away. The Germans drill their black soldiers, and the French, whose numbers include a quiet, boyish geographer, go about their business. This somnolent peace is shattered with the months-old news from Europe that the two nations are at war. The French patriots decide to march on the German lord for the "greater glory of France," and what begins as a comedy turns into a movie which is less about the senselessness of war than about how times and circumstances can create leaders. The film's central figure is the geographer, Fresnoy (Jacques Spiesser), who emerges as the DeGaullean commander of the desperate Frenchmen. Occisive, blunt, cruel, high-handed and always polite, he turns out to be a man whose discipline and intellect mask a fanatic's zeal. Director Jean-Jacques Annaud's unpretentious comedy erects a shrewd assessment of human foibles, and gives a withering account of the racial ignorance and contempt on which colonialism was built. France, 1976, 91 minutes

Nightly: ALTERED STATES 7:30
INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS 9:20

ALTERED STATES finds director Ken Russell (The Devils) meeting screenwriter Paddy Chayevsky (Network, Hospital). The result, a hilariously pretentious and highly enjoyable mixture of psychedelic drug research, mumbo-jumbo, Dadaesque surrealism and dazzling pop collage which is also the splashiest visual display of any movie year. William Hurt (Eyewitness, Body Heat) plays Dr. Jessup, a Harvard psychophysiology professor, who wants to burrow so deep inside his brain that he will tap the memory of early evolutionary stages stored there. Using mind-expanding drugs and immersing himself in immersion tanks for hours on end, he is a hip Dr. Frankenstein in demonic pursuit of ultimate truth. Jessup's dangerous voyage in search of the primal being inside himself takes him across millions of years of collective memory. But so powerful are his visions that they become externalized. Underlying Chayevsky's horror story is a love story derived from the Orpheus-Eurydice myth: his Eurydice (Blair Brown) must bring her lover back from hell, using the very contemporary notion of love. Dependably bizarre, Altered States has many of the characteristics of its principal character, who is obsessive, exciting, scary, energetic, and altogether quite odd. Using a vast palette of special effects, Russell combines electronic music (by John Congianno), video imagery, and all manner of visionary artifacts in a vast, ear-splitting, spectacular array. This is a movie that revels in its own craziness, but don't bother asking what it means, since it makes no claim on the viewer's reason. Accept the fact that it's a kind of convulsive, apocalypse-now filmmaking which will leave you exhilarated, scared—and your ears ringing. USA, 1980, 102 minutes. R

INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS is director Philip Kaufman's dazzling re-make of Oon Siegel's 1956 horror classic of the same name. Kaufman and his screen-writer, W.D. Richter, are after thrills, and they give us plenty, in fact, you can sit back assured that every spooky nuance you're catching is just what was intended. The plot is a familiar one: how an entire populace (San Francisco) is duplicated by mysterious pods, creating a new species devoid of anxiety, but incapable of love, hate, or any other human emotion. Donald Sutherland is the public health inspector-hero, Brooke Adams his co-worker and love interest, and Leonard (Dr. Spock) Nimoy a hip psychiatrist. Jeff Goldblum and Veronica Cartwright complete the ensemble of good guys. Kaufman is a master at evoking an ominous, impersonal urban landscape, and his film is full of intimations of cool, constant peril, and wonderfully paranoid chills. More than just a sci-fi thriller, this movie treats contemporary problems of urban paranoia and loss of individuality with intelligence and sensitivity. For undiluted pleasure and sheer excitement, it's hard to match on this summer's series. USA, 1978, 114 minutes. PG

Nightly: ALTERED STATES 7:30
INVASION OF THE BODY SNATCHERS 9:20

well it should have. It's hard to think of another recent American film that so richly deserved its kudos, prizes and honors. Written by Alvin Sargent and based on Judith Guest's 1976 best-seller, Robert Redford's impressive directorial debut is an austere, sensitive and genteel examination of the ways in which a family falls under pressure and struggles, with ambiguous results, to renew itself. There are no villains in Redford's world, only fallible human beings trying to work things out, and succeeding in remarkably touching ways. The central figure is Conrad Jarrett (Timothy Hutton), the guilt-ridden teenage son of an upper-middle-class family in Lake Forest, Illinois, who blames himself for the death of his younger brother in a boating accident. Conrad attempts suicide, is hospitalized, undergoes shock treatment, and comes back to his family and friends while continuing his therapy with a psychiatrist (Judd Hirsch). Donald Sutherland is a model of compassion as the tax attorney father trying to hold the family together, but the movie's hard edge comes from Mary Tyler Moore, whose performance as the unforgiving mother is a revelation. Ordinary People is a film very much in the Kramer vs. Kramer mode in its concern for family tensions as the pivotal human experience. Its power does not lie in originality, but in the way it observes behavior, and in its novelistic buildup of subtly characterizing details. This is a must-see movie, especially for parents, for it addresses itself quietly and intelligently to issues everyone who attempts to raise children must face. USA, 1980, 123 minutes. R

News of the Theatres

Showcase Theatre, 1150 Indiana Avenue, Trenton.

Students as young as seven (and up to nine) may join the Tuesday and Thursday classes that will be held from 9:30 to 11:30. Big brothers and sisters, ages ten to 12, may sign up for the afternoon classes from noon to 2 on those days. Both will run for five weeks starting the week of June 20.

Classes will emphasize the development of each child's confidence, imagination, style and poise. An original student presentation, at the end of the session, will grow from explorations of movement, music, language and play. Tuition is $40.

Teen-agers with some on-stage experience will be chosen through auditions for an original musical for children called "The Adventures of the Country Mouse." Auditions will be held this Wednesday from 3:30 to 6 and this Thursday from 5:30 to 8.

There are parts for five males and five females, and those who try out should bring a song. Showcase will provide the accompanist.

Those who are chosen will have a seven-week rehearsal schedule. The fee for participation is $50.

Direction will be under the guidance of Carolyn Viola, who has been active in musical and theatrical groups in the area. She has taught both music and drama in several school districts and for the Princeton YWCA.

Information about audition appointments and registration may be obtained by calling 466-0648 between 8:30 and 10 a.m.

SHAKESPEARE

At Drew. Six plays will be presented this season in the annual New Jersey Shakespeare Festival at Drew University in Madison. The Actors' Equity professional repertory company is under the artistic direction of Paul Barry.

"Twelfth Night" will open the season on June 22, playing in repertory through August 21. "Timon of Athens," the tragedy of an open-hearted man abandoned by his friends when he becomes penniless, will open July 6 and play in repertory through September 5.

For the third play, the Festival will depart from Shakespeare to present John O'Keeffe's "Wild Oats," described as "an engaging 18th-century romp." Opening August 3, it will have its final performance September 19.

"Our Town," Thornton

Wilder's classic, will open September 21 and appear in the repertory schedule through October 17. "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," another American classic, will open October 19. The Tennessee Williams drama will close November 14.

The season will end with a comedy, still to be announced. The dates are November 16, December 12.

"Monday Night Events," which are performances of dance, mime, music or events for children, will start July 12, running through September 27 at 8 p.m.

Detailed subscription information is available from New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, Route 24, Madison, N.J., 07940. The telephone is 201-377-4487.

WELCOME SUMMER...

With "Summer Cinema." Twelve weeks of double features — can't beat it, if you're a film buff. McCarter's sixth season of summer movies will begin Thursday, June 17, continuing through Labor Day weekend. There will even be a Fourth of July celebration: late-night screenings, over that week-end, of "Richard Pryor Live in Concert."

Each of the 12 weekly programs will have five screenings, Wednesday through Sunday evenings, in (air-conditioned) Kresge Auditorium in the Frick Chemical Building, Washington Road.

The season will begin with Bob Fosse's "All That Jazz," described by McCarter's advance man as a "razzle-dazzle autobiographical musical which broke new ground by melding music, dance and drama on a level no film musical had previously achieved."

The companion feature will be Blake Edwards' "S.O.B.," described — and again we're quoting McCarter — as "a scathing hatchet job on Hollywood." Julie Andrews stars.

Note the schedule: although other double features will run Wednesdays through Sundays, this one will not start until Thursday.

YOUNG WOMEN FOCUS
Of Guitarist's Program.
Princeton performer, music researcher, and guitar teacher Caroline Moseley will accompany herself on the guitar in a program entitled "Images of Young Women in 19th Century Popular Song" on Monday June 7.

Her performance, which will take place from 7:30-9:30 at the Mary Jacobs Memorial Library in Rocky Hill, marks the final program in a series funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities and sponsored by Radcliffe College's Women in the Community project.

Ms. Moseley's songs, which she discovers by researching old sheet music at the Library of Congress, are the ones which were sung by young women in an era when social activities were not age-segregated, and it was customary for daughters of the house to play the piano or sing for their families and others. Ms. Moseley, who introduces each song by talking about the young women's hopes, and the expectations society had for them, has chosen a program that consists of songs sung not only by, but about, young ladies of the 19th century — the way they were seen by others, and the way they saw themselves.

The MCSO String Training Ensemble is scheduling auditions for new members on Thursday, September 9, at 6:30 and for returning members on Thursday, September 16, at 6:30 in the Music House at the Lawrenceville School. Call Mrs. Frances Posnock, manager, (201) 297-0528, for an appointment.

News of the Theatres

As the summer moves along, "Summer Cinema" will pair off "Raging Bull" with another Fosse film, "Lenny" — about Lenny Bruce — and Warren Beatty in "Heaven Can Wait" with "La Cage Aux Folles," the 1979 summer comedy hit about aging French homosexuals.

A pair of surrealistic fantasies: Bunuel's "That Obscure Object of Desire" and Fellini's "Fellini Satyricon," will heat up a summer evening.

The only single feature, because of its length, will be Francis Ford Coppola's "Apocalypse Now," starring Marlon Brando, Martin Sheen and Robert Duvall, as men caught in the torment of Vietnam.

"Coal Miner's Daughter," with Sissy Spacek portraying country singer Loretta Lynn, will be paired with Bette Midler's film, "The Rose," based on the life of rock star Janis Joplin.

"Pretty Baby," with Brooke Shields, who was then 12, as a child prostitute in New Orleans, will be shown with "Last Tango in Paris," the Marlon Brando film often shown in "Summer Cinema" programs.

Two time-trippers will be on the same program, when the classic "2001" plays with "Time After Time," in which the director imagines a meeting in present-day San Francisco, between H.G. Wells and Jack the Ripper.

Science fiction again, as "Summer Cinema" joins "Altered States" with "Invasion of the Body Snatchers." The latter is a re-make of the 1956 horror story.

Raku and innovative glazes, coil and slab and the most skillfully thrown forms demonstrate the range that characterizes contemporary pottery. Fabric and fiber, too, is presented in a variety of ways ranging from hand-painted trapunto wall hangings, to pillows, hats and albums bound with lace, pearls and a distinctly nostalgic look.

At the Princeton Gallery of Fine Art, Sculpture and prints by Dorothea Greenbaum celebrate the artist's continuing relationship with the forms she finds around her. Both the sculpture and the prints reflect Greenbaum's concern with the rhythms and textures that nature creates. The established harmonies of familiar forms are refined and expressed in an eloquent manner. Classical interpretations of female forms and small creatures are dignified in line, bronze and terra cotta. The prints have the same sense of lyrical form and three-dimensionality that characterizes Greenbaum's sculpture.

AT NASSAU GALLERY
French Painter. The French painter Jacqueline Faust will show her works for the first time in this country at The Nassau Gallery, 20 Nassau. The exhibit will open with a reception this Thursday from 5 to 7 at the gallery.

Painting in a style reminiscent of Gauguin, she has exhibited widely in Europe and Latin America and is represented in private collections. As the wife of a journalist, she has traveled widely and her paintings reflect this cosmopolitan way of life. Her exhibit will remain on view through June 26.

ON VIEW, AT BANK
"Essences." Princeton artist Marsden Morse will show her oils and watercolors during June at the 194 Nassau offices of New Jersey National Bank. The exhibit is sponsored by the Princeton Art Association.

Mrs. Morse is calling her show "Essences." It will open formally this Friday with a reception from 7 to 8:30 p.m., and will remain at the bank through June 30.

SUMMER, WITH ART
In Four-week Session. Spend the summer perfecting your artistic skills. That's the invitation from the Princeton art Association, which will start a four-week summer session next Monday at the studios.

Rosedale Road studios. Two critiques by Elizabeth Ruggles — new for this session — will be given Tuesdays, June 15 and 22. Artists may bring work in any medium for naturalistic opinion.

Lee Harr will teach portrait drawing and painting on Monday afternoons, and Jacques Fabert will give a class in

Marie Sturken is planning a Tuesday morning class in monoprnt and Deborah Kahn will give a class in basic painting on Tuesday mornings and basic drawing on Tuesday afternoons.

Mary Yess will once again teach "Drawing on the Right Side of the Brain," in which she departs from the traditional approach in teaching students to draw. This class will be given Tuesday evenings. On Tuesday mornings, Ron Lent will teach watercolor, in the traditional style.

The chance to draw from a nude model will be offered on Tuesday evenings and Wednesday afternoons. There will be no formal teaching or criticism in this Life Workshop.

Linda Lombardi will give an introductory course in watercolor on Wednesday mornings, and Frederic Scudder will offer basic painting on Wednesday evenings. On Friday mornings, he teaches an oil and acrylic painting course, emphasizing the technique of painting to describe and give form to what the artist feels.

On Saturday mornings, Eli Dimeff will also give an introductory course in painting, describing the use of oils and acrylics for those who have little or no experience in these techniques.

The week-ends will have two more Life Workshops: one on Friday evening and, on Sunday, "Sunday Morning with a Nude." The Friday workshop is designed for the artist who wants sustained poses.

Telephone reservations for any of the courses may be made by calling 921-9173.

Recruiting Efforts Pay Off for Some Princeton Coaches; A "Blue Chip" Basketball Player Should Help Pete Carril

The football team stands undefeated, without a single player felled by injuries. The basketball team hasn't lost a game in months, and Pete Carril has not come close to losing a player on fouls. The skaters on the hockey team are better rested than ever. The baseball team has not been rained or snowed out in weeks, and Coach Tom O'Connell has every pitcher on his staff rested and ready to throw.

Summertime looms and hope springs at least until September if not eternally. And, thanks to the influx of new athletes in the Class of 1986, the bulls can now have their day in assessing the prospects of Princeton University's sports teams. The bears will have plenty of chances later, as the realities of college athletics reassert themselves.

For now some good news from the coaches' annual joust with the admissions office, compiled in large part with the assistance of Bill Stryker, the University's director of athletic relations.

Skills Players for Football. Last year at this time followers of the Orange and Black football team were stalking the back woods and back alleys looking for good sized linemen to augment the team's existing strengths and looking for some way to beat Yale after 15 years of trying.

This year, they sought players at the skill positions and they apparently got some through the admissions office with, and with Yale finally back in place, into the ranks of the new freshman class. About 60 football recruits are headed toward campus, including six from Ohio, five from Michigan, and three from Southern California, places where good football players sometimes grow on trees. Stryker, who is also the Palmer Stadium public address announcer, points out that "this is an important year to develop a quarterback at the freshman level." Brent Woods, who led the team to its final game victory over Cornell last year, will return feet in that event and also as a senior, but the classes under him include no sure-fire successor at that position.

Of course, the team also needs running backs to replace Larry Van Pelt and Mike Neary and four offensive linemen to replace graduating seniors. Coach Frank Navarro also knows that Brown, Cornell, and co-champion Dartmouth all incurred very light losses and are expected to be much stronger this year than last. But that's all bear talk and it should be addressed later, not now.

A Basketball Blue Chip. Several months ago, if you had asked Pete Carril what high school senior he would most want on his team next year (given the realities of the admissions office, of course), he would have answered John Smyth, a 6-foot-three guard from Stamford Catholic High School in Connecticut. If you had asked that question of the coaches at Harvard, Dartmouth, or Stanford, they would have given the same answer.

John Smyth will attend Princeton. A national Merit Scholar, Smyth averaged 31.8 points, 10 rebounds, and 4 steals per game in high school. Perhaps more important than those statistics, Smyth is considered the type of player who could blend well in the Princeton backcourt with Billy Ryan, one of last year's starting guards. For Carril and the team, which managed to struggle to a .500 finish despite considerable odds working against it, the arrival of Smyth may be the best news in several years.

Track Runs On. Having won the cross country and indoor and outdoor heptagonal meets and then, incredibly, the outdoor ICA meet this year, the track coaches could hardly ask for anything more. But Larry Ellis and Fred Samara did and they have come up with several more prospects.

The pick of this new litter may be a hammer thrower from Providence, Rhode Island, who has thrown 205 feet in that event and also more than 175 in the discus. The weight corps, already the strength of the Princeton team, may get additional help from a San Diego shot putter, who has reached 58 feet, 9 inches.

In the sprints, the Tigers successfully recruited a Nigerian-born Welshman who has run 10.6 in the 100 meters and an Ohioan who has recorded a 10.7 time in that event. Three sub-50 second quarter milers are also headed toward Princeton, as is a pole vaulter who has cleared 15 feet. At least one big one got away, the national high school cross country champion who spurned Princeton for Stanford.

Eleven Skaters Coming. Coach Jack Higgins figures that, with the attrition that is normal in the sport of hockey, he needs to recruit at least 10 skaters in each class to maintain a healthy squad of 22. This year he has attracted 11 to Nassau, four of whom are expected to be of immediate help to the team in their freshman year.

Wrestling Drought Ends. Last year was, in Stryker's words, "a disaster" for wrestling coach Johnny Johnston. One wrestling prospect was admitted with the Class of 1985. This year about eight wrestlers are expected to show up on campus in September. Johnston, always an upbeat individual no matter what, now is said to be especially pleased that the new recruits seem to fit the weight positions where the team needed help most.

Baseball Turnaround. For the past several years, as the athletic department struggled to find a fulltime coach for the baseball program, Princeton did essentially no recruiting for that sport. A few players showed up every year anyhow, and some football players always wanted to play baseball — if for no other reason than to release excess energy in the spring.

This year O'Connell got off to a late start. He wasn't appointed to the coaching spot until the middle of winter, when New York Yankee coach Jeff Torborg was lured out of his commitment to Princeton by George Steinbrenner's big bucks and big promises. When O'Connell wasn't in the coaching box he was apparently on the telephone, scaring up talented players. Thirteen baseball prospects will enroll with the freshman class in September, and they include a preponderance of pitchers and infielders.

Crew Coaches Pleased. Larry Gluckman, coach of the rebuilding heavyweight crew, enjoyed a successful recruiting season: 12 prospective oarsmen were accepted and ten of them chose Princeton, despite the best efforts of Harvard, Yale and Cornell.

Lightweight coach Gary Kilpatrick was reported to have had similarly positive results.

The crews are the only teams still active on the University campus. The heavyweights travel to Syracuse this weekend for the IRA regatta. Three heavyweights from the freshman boat and one from the varsity have been selected to compete for places on the pre-Elite racing team, a grooming squad for the United States national boat. Another heavyweight, Bill Somers, the stroke on the varsity boat, has been invited to compete for a spot on the Elite squad.

And four lightweights will compete in the national lightweight selection camp which will be held on Lake Carnegie June 9 through 12. Boston University coach Bill Miller will select 20 to train for the United States Rowing Association's national lightweight crew which will compete in Europe during the summer.

Cardinal mental mistakes, Hun pushed a run across to win, 5-4. "We fought back three or four times; it was one of our better played games," said Hun coach Bill McQuade.

In winning, Hun ended with a 9-11 record. "It was a nice way to finish," agreed McQuade. As for that .500 goal — "We just missed it," he said. "You always look back. There are always one or two games you think you should have won ... there are always those 'ifs'."

Here's an amazing baseball fact ... A player named Bobby Lowe set a major league home run record back in 1894 — and despite all the great home run hitters who've played the game in all the years since then, no one has EVER broken that record ... The record that Lowe set was hitting 4 home runs in one big league game ... A few players over the years have tied that record — but no one has ever broken it.

"I Bet You Didn't Know" that we have a nice new clock in our Nassau Street window. Look for it!

Can you name the first 5 players elected to baseball's Hall of Fame? ... They were: Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson.

Here's an oddity about the manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, Tom Lasorda ... Although he pitched in the major leagues for 3 years, Lasorda NEVER won a game! ... He pitched in 26 games for the Dodgers in 1954 and '55 and for the A's in 1956.

Lawrence would probably give anything to replay the last inning in regulation play. Starter Bobby Krepps, one of the Cardinals' better hurlers, whom Hun had defeated in its final game last year, struck out the first two Hun batters and had an 0-2 count on Tim Landis. "Things looked bleak," said McQuade.

Landis, however, kept the Raiders' hopes alive with a single to right. Scott Crater went in to run for the senior co-captain and promptly stole second. John Iorio, Hun's other co-captain, struck out to end the game ... or so it seemed.

The Cardinal catcher missed the ball and Crater broke for third. Instead of getting the easy out at first, the catcher tried to nail Crater at third, but Crater beat the throw. McQuade then signalled for a delayed double steal. The Cardinals misplayed the ball, Crater scored, and Hun had tied the game at 4.

3 Hits for Pintella. After holding Lawrence in the eighth, Paul Pintella opened the Hun half of the inning with his third single. Landis followed with a single and on a two-strike pitch, Chris Hunninghake singled up the middle and Hun had its win.

Both teams had scored one run in the first, Hun plating its run on Pintella's single, an error, and Landis's single. It stayed tied until the sixth when a single by Iorio, a fielder's choice, Pintella's second hit, a sacrifice fly and an error on the Cardinal shortstop sent two Hun runs across. Lawrence regained the lead, 4-3, in the top of the seventh, scoring two runs on a triple and single. That rally set up the final-inning dramatics.

For McQuade, the former Princeton High School baseball captain, it marked the end of his 11th season. For his 12th, he will face, he said, basically the same problems in key positions he had to contend with this spring: pitching, catching and shortstop.

He loses six from the varsity but has, he says, "a pretty good nucleus coming back." Among those going are Landis, who batted close to .400 and ended as the Raiders' top pitcher with a 6-4 record. "He had an outstanding year," said McQuade.

Also, Iorio, the left fielder; Rob Kiernan, the post-grad shortstop; catcher John Crater and Greg Frank, the backup shortstop. Also Kris Wronski, the standout basketball player for Hun, who came out to play baseball for the first time since his Little League days.

MONDAY IS START Of Summer Tennis Program.

The Princeton Community Tennis Program will begin group lessons on Monday. For juniors out of school early, a special early June session will be offered June 7-11 and June 14-18. These week-long sessions for 4th to 12th graders offer players of all ability levels a camp-type atmosphere. Students come six hours a day for five days. Instruction, drills, matches and games are part of each day's activities, under the direction of Bob Callahan, Princeton University's Jayvee tennis coach. Openings are still available.

The adult program also gets under way on Monday with daytime and evening classes for all levels. A special feature will be a tennis camp for adults, meeting two mornings a week from 9 to 12. Designed for the advanced intermediate and advanced player, each week will emphasize a different aspect of the game. Senior citizens — 55 and older — can participate in the "Tennis for Seniors" this summer which meets twice a week, from 7:30-9 a.m. or 4:30-6 p.m., beginning Monday.

On June 21, the full summer junior program starts with classes for third through twelfth graders. Participants will have the choice of coming to class three days a week or five days a week.

For junior players desiring a more intensive program, the Community Program offers the PCTP Tennis Camp, which will be under the direction of Mr. Callahan. The camp, six hours a day, five days a week, will cover strokes, drilling, physical conditioning, strategy and tactics, as well as match play.

The PCTP takes registrations on a weekly basis; however, a special discount is given for any six weeks if paid in advance. Register by stopping by the Tennis Office, 71 University Place. For further information, call the Tennis Office, 924-4343.

TO CONDUCT CLINIC In Summer Wrestling.

The Princeton Recreation Department will sponsor a summer wrestling clinic for boys in grades 6-12 at Princeton High School on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 9. Although the program will not start until July 6, those interested should call the Recreation Office and register by Friday, June 4. The fee — $25 for residents, $50 for non-residents — will cover instruction twice a week from July 6 through August 12.

The teaching staff is headed by Princeton High School coach Larry DiPano, who came to Princeton High last year from Mountain High School where he coached wrestling for several years. DiPano is a graduate of Rutgers University where he was an outstanding wrestler. Leland Merrill Jr., a past National AAU champion and Olympic medal winner in wrestling, and currently the assistant coach for PHS, is a staff member, as is Matt

Wilkenson, nationally-ranked wrestler at Purdue University and former Princeton High School wrestling captain. This program is designed to demonstrate and teach amateur wrestling techniques. Interested boys need not have any wrestling experience in order to register. The Department will also hold competitive diving evaluations at Community Park Pool Saturday, June 12, from 9:30-11. All interested divers between 6 and 17 (Princeton residents or season ticket holders) are invited to join the team which will compete against other clubs in the area as part of the Princeton Area Swimming and Diving Association league.

Celia Green, a member of the Princeton University diving team, will evaluate divers and place them in classes which will meet Tuesday and Thursday mornings between 10 and noon.

The diving program will begin June 12 and continue through July 30. The fee is $50 for the first child in a family, and $25 for each additional child. For additional information, call 921-9480.

MIKE'S TIES ANDY'S
For Softball Lead. Both games in the Princeton Women's Adult Slow Pitch Softball League last week featured close contests.

Mike's Tavern defeated Conte's Bar, 11-7, but had to take advantage of costly Conte's errors and come from behind to do it. Mike's got four runs in the bottom of the first inning on singles by Kathy Shillabar and Missy McCloskey and a double from Debbie Breithaupt. Conte's scored three runs in the top of the second, sparked by a Nancy Pesce double, and four in the third on singles by Cathy Burroughs, Peggy Wood, Carol Ann Mazzella, a triple and two RBI's by Harriet Staub, and a triple by Jackie Rock.

Trailing 7-4 going into the last of the third Mike's got one run back on a Dee Pearce RBI. The defense shut Conte's out over the final four innings, and the offense, led by Elizabeth Zingg, Barbara Miller and winning pitcher Clare Baxter (all 2-for-3 overall), scored six runs in the fifth and sixth innings to wrap up the win.

PITC Wins First. In the other contest, Princeton Indoor Tennis Center (PITC), although outthit 17-14, got its first win of the season, by outlasting Koffee Kup, 15-12.

PITC jumped to an early lead with three runs in the top of the first on hits by Carol Beske, Anne Williams and a double by Cos Cosgrove. PITC added four more runs in the third, sparked by hits and RBI's by Cheryl Spratt and Kelly Hector.

The Kup came right back with four runs of its own in the bottom of the inning, led by hits by Barbara Rice (a perfect 5-for-5), Joanne Rice, Sheila Kelly, and 3 RBI's by Grace McEwen. Leading 7-5, PITC scored four more runs in the top of the fourth, highlighted by a Liz Cramp double. The losers refused to rollover. Led by a three-run home by Judi Grisham and hits from Penny Rice and Lakay Broadway, the Kup scored five times to come within a run of PITC, 11-10.

There was no scoring in the next two innings, but PITC scored four in the top of the seventh to lead 15-10. Koffee Kup got two runs back, and with two outs and two runners on base, had the tying run at the plate, when PITC short-stop Cramp made the defensive play of the contest, snagging a hard-hit line drive off the bat of Joanne Rice, to end the game. Pitcher Linda Bassett got the win.

Next week, the league moves to Wednesday nights only for the rest of the season and will feature a game between the only undefeated teams remaining, Andy's Tavern and Mike's Tavern. In the other game, Koffee Kup will oppose Conte's Bar.

The standings:

	W	L	Pct
Andy's Tavern	2	0	1.000
Mike's Tavern	2	0	1.000
Conte's Bar	1	1	.500
P.I.T.C.	1	2	.333
Koffee Kup	0	3	.000

LITTLE TIGERS BEATEN
In Girls Lacrosse. The Princeton High girls lacrosse team must have lost something between the halves of its game with Moorestown on Monday.

The Little Tigers led the third-seeded South Jersey team, 6-4, at the intermission in the quarterfinals of the NJSIAA tournament, but it was all Moorestown when the teams took the field for the second half.

The winners outscored PHS, 9-1, for a 14-7 victory, ending the Little Tigers' dreams of capturing the title. PHS had beaten Chatham in the opening round, 16-3.

Kathy Kahny had five of the team's seven goals, Ann Bakoulis added the other two. Katie Heinzl, Sally Gorman and Nora Oates also played well. PHS goalie Kiki Van Raalte had a good first half, but ran into trouble in the second. She was hampered by the swamp-like conditions of the field after a weekend of rain.

Against Chatham, the Little Tigers were slow getting started. But once they warmed up, after scoring their first goal four minutes into the game, they dominated the 13th-seeded losers.

Kahny scored three times in the first half, and added four more in the second, as she continued to rewrite the PHS scoring records. Bakoulis added four, Harper Hoff, two, Debbie Cedeno, Sylvia Greenspan and Oates, one apiece.

BAD DAY FOR PHS
In State Track Meet. It's unfortunate, to say the least, when almost all of your performers pick the state meet to have an off day.

That's what happened to the Princeton High track team at the NJSIAA Group track and field championships held Friday and Saturday at Rutgers.

Stadium. PHS coach Marc Anderson summed it up best, "These are the kinds of days you want to forget."

Nine points was all the Little Tigers could muster, far behind the 38 amassed by rival Asbury Park. Stephan Fletcher missed first place in the 110-high hurdles by two-tenths of a second, losing to Bill Newmuis of Penns Grove.

The other Princeton points came from Wayne Davis, who finished fourth in the same race, Lamont Fletcher who was fourth in the 400 intermediate hurdles Friday, and Tom Murray who finished fifth in the shot put.

Murray was one of the few who had reason to be proud of his showing. He passed the 50-foot mark for the first time with a toss of 50-1½. Lamont Fletcher, however, had to be scratched from the 100-meter dash when he reinjured his thigh.

Stephan Fletcher will get another chance to beat Newmuis at the Meet of Champions set for Wednesday in Palmer Stadium.

FRIDAY IS DEADLINE

For Summer Lacrosse. All those interested in playing lacrosse this summer must register with the Princeton Recreation Department by Friday. Applications are available in the Recreation Department located on Witherspoon Street in the Township Hall Annex Building.

The entrance fee into both leagues is $10 for Princeton residents; $20 for non-residents. The men's league will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings at 5:30 beginning June 14. The women's league plays at 5:30 Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning June 24. Both leagues will meet at Princeton High School.

Wrestling Clinic. The Recreation Department is also sponsoring a summer wrestling clinic for boys in grades 6-12 at Princeton High School on Tuesday and Thursday evenings between 7 and 9.

Although the program will not start until July 6, all interested participants should call the Recreation Office and register by Friday. The fee is $25 for residents, $50 for non-residents. There will be instruction twice a week from July 6 through August 12.

Playground Registration. Parents interested in

Carril Picks Wayne Szoke

Princeton basketball coach Pete Carril has chosen Wayne Szoke to join his coaching staff, replacing Ton Relvas, who left earlier this year to become head coach at Colgate.

Ed Reilly moves up to become Carril's top assistant; Szoke will take over for Reilly as jayvee coach in both basketball and baseball. Szoke twice has served on the staff of Rutgers basketball coach Tom Young and did most of the scouting for the Scarlet Knights last season.

A native of Rahway, Szoke graduated from the University of Maryland in 1963. He was runner-up for the job for which Relvas was hired in 1975, and Carril recommended him to Gary Walters.

He assisted Walters at both Dartmouth and Providence.

registering their child or children in this summer's centralized playground program sponsored by the Princeton Recreation Department must do so by next Friday, June 11.

The program will be held at the Valley Road Field from 9 to 3, Monday through Friday, beginning June 28 for children in grades one through six. The cost is $30 per child. Registration forms are available in the Recreation Office. For additional information on any of these programs, call 921-9480.

PEDDIE COACH NAMED

For Field Hockey Program. Suzanne Jones of the Peddie School has been named as a coach for the USA Field Hockey's 1982 Olympic Development Program.

She will be one of approximately 200 coaches involved in the selection and training programs for the National and Olympic Field Hockey Teams, for which all players receive individual coaching of the highest caliber.

Players move through succeeding weeks from D camp to A camp with the program culminating in competition at the United States Olympic Committee's National Sports Festival. This year's Sports Festival is to be held in Indianapolis. D camp, June 27 to July 2, is comprised of experienced players but most do not yet show the maturity of play necessary to stand for selection to a National Team.

Selection begins, and individual instruction continues for the more advanced players at C camp the following week. From here young women showing the highest degree of excellence or potential are invited to attend B level programs and then A camp at Indianapolis for the best of the B athletes. 1982 is the seventh year that USA Field Hockey has administered this highly successful program.

Jones will also be directing the 1982 Peddie Field Hockey Camp during the weeks of August 16-21 and August 23-28. The camp will be held at the Peddie School and cost per athlete will be $40. For more information and application phone 448-8480.

FIVE AT STUART NAMED

To All-Star Lacrosse Team. Five members of the Stuart Country Day School lacrosse team have been named to the JNAIS women's all-star team. They were honored at the annual athletic luncheon held at Stuart on Wednesday, May 26.

The five lacrosse players who won places on the all-star team are seniors Carol Cotton, Mary Beth Hughes, Catherine Keuffel and Li Van Horn and junior Lee Jamieson.

Mary Beth Hughes also was recognized for achieving Stuart's all-time highest individual goal scoring record. She made 137 goals in lacrosse during her three year varsity career.

Chris Leahy received Stuart's highest athletic award, the four year varsity award, for her outstanding four year participation in two sports: field hockey and basketball. Forty seven varsity and 53 j.v. awards in field hockey, tennis, basketball, ice hockey and lacrosse were made to Stuart girls in the upper school.

TOURNAMENT WON

By Audrey Gates. Audrey Gates won the Handicap Championship at Springdale Golf Club last week, defeating Anne Poole.

After qualifying, the championship flight included Beverly Crane, medalist, Rita Edmunds, Nancy Ford, Kate Conover, Kathy Shillaber, Ruth Shaw, Mimi Frantz, Kay Bingeman, Jean Petrone, Lois Fulmer, Anne Poole, and Debbie Shillaber.

In the First Flight, Jackie O'Neil defeated Kathy Shillaber, and Marion Houghton won the Second Flight over Debbie Shillaber.

GET IN THE RUN

Fete Race June 12. The

Seasonal Fete race, the fifth annual June fete 10-kilometer run, will start at 9:30 next Saturday, June 12. Sponsors of the event are Princeton Bank, Saucony and Commodities Corporation.

T-shirts with the fete race logo will be presented to the first 500 entrants. Entry forms are available at the Princeton Bank, the YWCA or by phone to 924-8631.

The race will be run over the streets of the Borough and Township in the vicinity of Princeton University. The start and finish will be on the Fete Fields on Washington Road between Route 1 and Lake Carnegie. The entry fee, which benefits the Medical Center at Princeton Foundation, is $6 for pre-registration; $7 for post registration.

Certificates will be provided to all participants. Merchandise prizes will be given to the top three male and female finishers in the following categories: 14 and under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60 and over.

MORAN AVE. PREVAILS

Against Chestnut St. In an annual neighborhood challenge softball game, Moran Avenue defeated Chestnut Street, 19-12.

Tom Ash and Mike Carr hit home runs for the winning team, and Cheryl Font reached base safely five times. The winning pitcher for Moran was Chris Bethune, with relief help from Jim Font and Duncan Bethune.

Borough Council talked it over. There are those on Council who want housing, but are not comfortable about using playground space. They might, however, go along with the Harrison Street playground if it were the only choice.

Mayor Cawley likes to emphasize that the majority of Council is "very supportive" of PCH. Members have advised PCH to look into all the zoning problems.

"But it's the 11th hour, the 11th day," the mayor repeats. "Time is running out."

'COKE' AND POETRY

Workshop. A two-week, four-session poetry workshop called "The Coke-Bottle-in-the-Ocean Method of Poetic Composition" will be given in mid-June by the Princeton Writers' Center, 10 Nassau. The Center will also hold a seminar on "Poetry: the State of the Art" this Sunday from 1:30 to 4:30 at 10 Nassau. Marjorie Sherwood and Robert Brown, poetry editors for Princeton University Press, will be joined by James A. Perkins, poet and associate professor of English at Westminster College (Wilmington, Pa.) for the seminar. The panelists' discussion of what's happening to poets and poetry today, will include audience participation.

Also, the Center will hold an introductory session this Friday at 4 for a high-school writing workshop planned for later in the summer. Teenagers who are interested are invited to come with questions as well as planning suggestions.

Dr. Perkins will give the "Coke-Bottle" workshop on Tuesdays and Thursdays, June 10, 12, 15 and 17 from 8 to 10 p.m. at 10 Nassau. He will talk about finding ideas and choosing a market, and the advantages and disadvantages of small presses as poetry markets.

The workshop will conclude with a poetry reading on Wednesday, June 17 at 7:30 p.m. at Cafe au Lait, 66 Witherspoon Street. Krysla Kolodziej, Elizabeth Travers and Dr. Perkins will read from their own works.

The Writers' Center high-school workshop will be given in six two-hour sessions from 10 to noon Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, August 18 through 27. It is designed to develop writing and research skills which can be used on school newspapers, yearbook projects or campus literary journals. Students will also be able to explore fiction techniques. In addition, they will publish a newspaper incorporating the material they have prepared in the workshop.

Sally Branon, feature writer and teacher, will lead the workshop. Hanna Fox, novelist and co-founder of the Princeton Writers' Center, will give a special session on fiction techniques.

Additional information, including information on scholarships, may be obtained by calling 924-3511.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED
By Family Service. John Hamel was elected president of the board of directors of the Family Service Agency of Princeton at the agency's annual meeting May 18. He succeeds Marjorie Blaxill, who had served as president for three years. She will continue as a member of the board.

Other new officers are Ann Glpps, executive vice-president; Richard Gilbert, treasurer; Ashton Harvey, assistant treasurer and Roger Alig, secretary.

Mrs. Blaxill, who led the fund drive that resulted in purchase by Family Service of a house for the agency's Hightstown offices, was given a plaque for "outstanding leadership" by members of the professional staff and board members. The board also gave her a gift. Mrs. Blaxill was recently elected to the national board of The Family Service Association of America.

Four staff members of the Princeton and Hightstown offices of Family Service, used disguised case histories to describe for the audience at the annual meeting the work done by the agency. Those who participated were William Rhoads, district director of the Hightstown office; Linda Meisel, director of Family Life Education; Jane Kretschmar, program specialist for the Employee Assistance program and also alcoholism counsellor, and Judy Lockard, alcoholism counsellor.

DO YOU WANT TO GO?

"I Do, I Do". There is still time for senior citizens to register with the Princeton Recreation Department to see "I Do, I Do" at the Garden State Arts Center on Tuesday.

Everyone should bring a picnic lunch and beverage for a picnic at Holmdel Park before the show. The recreation department will supply a cooler for beverages.

The cost is $5.50, and the deadline to register is Friday. To register, call the Recreation Office at 921-9480.

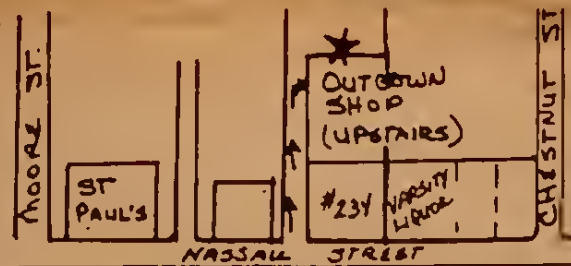

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Arts Council Is 15. That lively youngster, the 15-year-old Arts Council of Princeton will celebrate its birthday with cake and champagne on Tuesday, June 15. Festivities begin at 8 p.m. and will be held — where else! — at the Council's new home, the Robeson Center at 102 Witherspoon.

The party will honor Princeton's two Pulitzer Prize composers: Roger Sessions and Milton Babbitt.

The occasion will give the public a chance to see the repainted, refurbished building, explore its various rooms and discover how many activities the building can encompass.

FROM 4-SPEED TO 10-SPEED: When Florence Taormina of Princeton Avenue, Hopewell, bought a new VW Rabbit at Princeton Volkswagen-Peugeot on Route 206 during a special "Self-A-Thon," she also filled in an entry blank on a new 10-speed Peugeot bicycle. She won. As she accepted the owner's manual from salesman Paul Harvey, the Opinion Research Employee commented, "I just had to learn how to drive a 4-speed, now I'll have to learn how to drive a 10-speed."
